RAIL STRIKE PARLEY UNDERWAY

Meat Strike Violence Flares

CHICAGO, May 7—A bystander was shot and critically wounded today as violence flared again in the six-week-old meat packing strike.

Luther Stewart, 38, a steel worker, was shot through the neck when a volley of 10 shots was poured at Fred Dunn, 54, an Armour and Co., employe on Chicago's south side.

Dunn told police he was sitting in his parked car waiting to pick up two other Armour workers. He said Stewart was also in a parked car just in front of him.

He told police that two men drove up in another car and suddenly opened fire on him.

One of the shots struck Stewart in the neck. His condition was pronounced critical at County hospital.

Dunn told police that after the attack he picked up another worker, Fred Foster, 43, and drove to a police station.

Police said Foster was seen to discard a revolver as he left Dunn's car. Both he and Dunn were held for questioning.

Dunn told police that he recognized the gunmen as strikers.

Meanwhile, the prolonged meat strike, which has tied up packing houses throughout the country, exploded new threats to the nation's economy.

With a nationwide railroad strike scheduled for next Tuesday wholesalers said further curtailments in meat production would result.

This threat was expanded by the prospect that stockhandlers will be called out of the Chicago Union Stockyards and additional walkouts in independent packing houses around the country.

Such developments would result in vast accumulation of livestock on farms and feedlots while consumers would find meat disappearing rapidly from butchers' counters and wholesalers' lockers.

Federal conciliators are due in Chicago tomorrow to attempt a

Steelman Acting As Peacemaker

Unions At Meeting In White House

WASHINGTON, May 7—A conference got underway at the White House this afternoon seeking to avert a strike next Tuesday of 150,000 railroad workers.

Presiding in the role of peacemaker was Dr. John R. Steelman, assistant to President Truman. The chiefs of the three unions threatening the paralyzing walkout arrived at the White House together for the parley.

President Truman and his cabinet discussed the threatened rail strike and its affect on the nation this morning.

Attorney General Tom Clark said that the strike threat was talked over in detail but that no preparations had yet been made for government seizure of the rails if the peace talks with Steelman fail.

After the cabinet session, and before meeting with the brotherhood leaders, Steelman had a long conference with the President.

CLARK SAID he had advised Mr. Truman that the government has the power to seize the railroads under a 1916 law.

The 1916 statute is applicable only in wartime. Clark said "I told the President several days ago that World War II is still on according to an opinion

British Appeal To UN To Name Holy City Mayor

LAKE SUCCESS, May 7—Britain appealed to the United Nations today to find an emergency mayor for Jerusalem acceptable to the Jews and Arabs.

The appeal came after efforts by the British government met with failure.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin cabled to UN Secretary General Trygve Lie a request for immediate action by the president of the General Assembly on this important selection in consultation with Jews and Arabs.

The Bevin communication indicated that consultations to agree on a Jerusalem candidate for mayor began in the holy city last night but ran quickly into the ground.

The British foreign secretary's message took the UN completely by surprise, with practically no candidate in sight for the moment.

Lie immediately canvassed a number of delegates for their opinion while assembly President Jose Arce busied himself in laying the groundwork for

A dynamite blast threw a detonating wire over a high tension line near West Mansfield. The wire carried a fatal shock to Jones' body.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Medical men are interested in the case of a woman who is awake for the first time since 1936. Some suspect the Landon campaign put her to sleep.

By sleeping for 12 years, she also missed Dewey's first two tries, "all aid short of war" and the beginning of "the century of the common man"—all spectacular events.

A long sleep has its compensations but I wouldn't want to be the one to break the news to any woman that she had aged 12 years since she went to bed.

Still a woman lucky enough to have known little of Hitler and less of high prices for 12 years has something to be thankful for.

If I were she I'd go right back to sleep for another 12 years—she can always catch a Dewey campaign. Frankly, 1948 doesn't have much more to recommend it than 1936—more medicine shows, that's all.

South Korea May Lose Power From Red Source

SEOUL, May 7—The Soviet-controlled North Korean regime threatened today to cut off more than half of South Korea's electricity supply because, it claimed, the U. S. military government has not paid its bill for power.

The threat was broadcast over the Pyongyang radio three days in advance of Monday's crucial United Nations-sponsored election in South Korea.

It coincided with a charge by Dr. Syngham Rhee, Rightist leader, that the so-called political prisoners released in South Korea were partly responsible for the wave of rioting and terrorism which has taken nearly 200 lives in the past month.

The prisoners were freed early in April at the request of the United Nations commission for Korea.

An American official said about 55 percent of South Korea's power comes from Russian-occupied North Korea.

County Rejects Road Project

Pickaway County commissioners Thursday rejected a petition for construction of a Circleville Township road, south of the corporation limits running from Route 23 to Washington street.

In their report, the commissioners said high construction costs would not warrant the building of the one-third mile long road which would have bordered property lines of Laura B. Lutz and Gwendolyn Crites.

The petitioners had asked that the road be graded, widened and a gravel surface placed.

Columbus Hikes Price To Farms

COLUMBUS, May 7—The price of milk from farmer to milk dealer will be two cents higher in Columbus in May than it was in the previous month.

The milk dealers said the price was increasing because of rising feed and production costs to the farmer. Dealers will pay $5.06 per 100 pounds for Class 1 April milk under federal regulations applying to the Columbus area. Milk prices for April, one year ago, were $1.20 lower.

Sell Circleville To Circleville Drive Started By Chamber

A Shop Circleville First campaign got underway this week in a coordinated drive by the local Chamber of Commerce to increase its membership roll by 131 potential businessmen and associates.

Under the chairmanship of John Magill, the Chamber has set out not only to strengthen its own ranks in numbers, but to sell Circleville business to Circleville residents.

The plan includes an organization of three membership captains, Paul Warden, Mack Parrett and Arthur Marr, each of whom heads a team. And team member has a list of business contacts to meet and bring into the Circleville Chamber of Commerce ranks.

The 79 active members of the group all are unofficial new-member-getters who are stressing to economy-minded residents the savings by untying purse strings in Circleville rather than spending an estimated $10 to drive to Columbus to shop.

CHAMBER officials declare that "if you can add and subtract, a party of two will spend $10 getting to and from the Capitol even before the shopping begins. This includes wear and tear on yourself and auto expenses, food, entertainment and parking."

Most of the success of the local shopping drive depends on increasing and strengthening the Chamber's membership roll. Magill reports that of the potential new members already contacted, none has answered with a flat "no."

He declared that half of those contacted have promised they would sign and the other half were "maybe" answers.

The "maybe" answers came from local businessmen who frankly asked what the Chamber has done in the past, what it plans for the future, to merit increased support through membership.

And Chamber officials, frankly admitting their organization "has been caught napping in the

Haganah Claims Gains In North Areas Of Zion

JERUSALEM, May 7—The Jewish Haganah army claimed two important victories in Palestine today, cementing their hold on the northern sectors of the Holy Land.

An announcement said that Haganah troops had taken over the city of Safad, 25 miles east of the port of Acre and about eight miles west of the Syrian frontier.

It said the town was seized after capture of the central police station and evacuation of the Arab population.

Haganah headquarters also said their troops had occupied strategic Jodaphat fortress atop Mount Canaan which overlooks Safad.

U.S. Air Force Speeds Program For Expansion

WASHINGTON, May 7—The Air Force sped plans today for a 70-group air armada which now has overwhelming approval of both houses of Congress.

The House and Senate recessed for the weekend without arranging a final conference to iron out minor differences but speedy final approval of the $3 billion plane procurement measure was forecast once conferees are named.

The Senate's resounding 74-2 passage of the 70-group Air Force removed last doubts that the 35,000 plane program will be carried through. It will provide 20,599 Air Force planes and 14,500 Navy planes.

Only minor Senate changes, including a new contract renegotiation provision remain to be adjusted.

Senate Airing Truman Program

WASHINGTON, May 7 — The Senate GOP policy committee was forced into a new showdown on its civil rights schedule today in the face of a floor fight that opened the whole field of President Truman's anti-discrimination program to debate.

There is a possibility that the green light might be transferred to the committee-approved anti-poll tax bill because of fading chances that the judiciary committee can agree on anti-lynching legislation in the next few days.

Acting Majority Leader Wherry, (R) Nebr., jolted by the threat of prolonged civil rights debate that flared out of the southern educational compact bill said he will lay his crowded list of "must" legislation before the policy committee today.

Wherry's list of legislation which the leadership wants to complete by June 19 includes such controversial matters as the draft, margarine, atomic nominations, tidelands, long-range farm program, army civil functions funds, displaced persons, government pay and civil rights.

MEANWHILE, the Senate judiciary committee called a meeting for a new and expected-ly-futile attempt to finish up its anti-lynching bill today.

Wherry was openly disturbed over the bitter debate that sprung from the southern educational compact bill and forced its postponement until Monday.

Steel Probe Set As Panel Eyes Oil Supplies

WASHINGTON, May 7 — Rep. Andrews, (R) N. Y., revealed today that the House armed services committee will launch an investigation next Fall on the need for government controls over steel.

The committee chairman stated that his group will follow through on the recommendation of a special subcommittee which found that a shortage of steel supplies is preventing an expansion of oil facilities.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep Short, (R) Mo., reported to the full committee that "the nation is in a critical oil situation." Short told reporters that "in the event of war we would have only a two weeks supply on hand."

Andrews said the full committee approved the findings of the special group which demanded that Congress impose government controls over the allocation of steel and provide for oil rationing unless a satisfactory voluntary program is established within six months.

Another Czech Plane Flees Reds

WIESBADEN, May 7—United States Air Force headquarters in Europe announced today that another Czech airplane with seven persons aboard has landed in the American occupation zone of Germany.

65 Railroaders In This Area May Be Laid Off

About 65 railroaders, who operate in the Circleville area, will be affected if the rail strike is called Tuesday as currently scheduled by union chieftains.

A. V. Osborn, agent for the Norfolk and Western Railway here, said Friday that about 50 employes of his line would be furloughed from four sections of trackmen, train crews and clerks.

Another 15 men, connected with the Pennsylvania line, will be affected, too, according to W. A. Hilyard, freight agent here for that line. However, nearly all of the Pennsylvania's employes working in this area, live in Lancaster.

AN EMBARGO on perishable freight, livestock and live poultry was ordered effective in Columbus at Friday midnight by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

A Columbus spokesman for the Pennsylvania Railroad said that such embargos "seem inevitable" on all roads through Ohio because of the threatened strike.

Some 6,500 Columbus area railroaders will be affected by the walkout. They include some 1,000 engineers, 1,300 firemen, and 200 switchmen directly involved and about 4,000 others thrown into idleness by the train stoppage.

Hospitals Warned Of Bad Supplies

COLUMBUS, May 7 — State Health Director John D. Porterfield warned city and county health commissioners today that there may be dangerously contaminated hospital supplies in the state.

He told the commissioners to warn hospitals against using all intravenous products of the Cutter Laboratories, of Berkley, Calif.

Dr. Porterfield acted on advice from the laboratories that contamination had been found in its dextrose 10 percent solution.

Businessmen Introduced To Manager Of GE Factory

Circleville's businessmen Thursday were introduced to the community's newest business and industrial manager when Edward G. Grigg, operation engineer for General Electric Co., spoke before the Rotary Club in the Pickaway Arms.

Grigg was named last Saturday as the manager of the new $2.5 million plant now under construction. He was transferred here from the lamp department headquarters in Nela Park, Cleveland.

The youthful plant manager, speaking in a rich Virginia drawl, made his first public appearance here to acquaint himself with local business leaders, "so you will know me," he said.

He was introduced to Rotary Club members by Zack Taylor, assistant manager of GE lamp manufcturing in Nela Park.

Grigg told Rotary it was his personal aim to have the GE plant become an interested party in community affairs.

"We are proud to bring our new lamp plant to Circleville and we hope you are glad to have us," the manager declared.

"WHILE THE Circleville branch plant will be operated individually and as a single unit, we are still the property of some 250,000 stockholders in all our 40 different factories", Grigg said.

The local plant will specialize in the assembly of a new eight-foot slimline lamp which only recently has been developed. Other types of lamps manufactured by the firm include an 18-inch lamp and a four-foot tube.

EDWARD GRIGG

"To look at our huge lamp department now," Grigg said, "it is difficult to believe when the florescent lamp was first developed its main purpose was an auxiliary light."

Other GE plants specialize in the manufacture of apparatus, air conditioning, appliance and merchandising and in atomic parts.

The plant will employ approximately 500 local employes of which about 80 percent will be women. Grigg pointed out that men will be hired to carry out the heavier duties.

"We have our own training program to teach our employes just what we want and how we want it done," Grigg stated.

The plant manager said his firm was fair on employe wages:

"WE SEEK TO pay wages that are right in all circumstances in view of what other employers have found proper in the community," Grigg declared.

He said GE employes would

British Appeal To UN To Name Holy City Mayor

LAKE SUCCESS, May 7—Britain appealed to the United Nations today to find an emergency mayor for Jerusalem acceptable to the Jews and Arabs.

The appeal came after efforts by the British government met with failure.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin cabled to UN Secretary General Trygve Lie a request for immediate action by the president of the General Assembly on this important selection in consultation with Jews and Arabs.

The Bevin communication indicated that consultations to agree on a Jerusalem candidate for mayor began in the holy city last night but ran quickly into the ground.

The British foreign secretary's message took the UN completely by surprise, with

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Medical men are interested in the case of a woman who is awake for the first time since 1936. Some suspect the Landon campaign put her to sleep.

By sleeping for 12 years, she also missed Dewey's first two tries, "all aid short of war" and the beginning of "the century of the common man"—all spectacular events.

A long sleep has its compensations but I wouldn't want to be the one to break the news to any woman that she had aged 12 years since she went to bed.

Still a woman lucky enough to have known little of Hitler and less of high prices for 12 years has something to be thankful for.

If I were she I'd go right back to sleep for another 12 years—she can always catch a Dewey campaign. Frankly, 1948 doesn't have much more to recommend it than 1936—more medicine shows, that's all.

County Rejects Road Project

Pickaway County commissioners Thursday rejected a petition for construction of a Circleville Township road, south of the corporation limits running from Route 23 to Washington street.

In their report, the commissioners said high construction costs would not warrant the building of the one-third mile long road which would have bordered property lines of Laura B. Lutz and Gwendolyn Crites.

The petitioners had asked that the road be graded, widened and a gravel surface placed.

Flag Day Set

COLUMBUS, May 7—Governor Herbert today proclaimed June 14 as Flag Day and the period of June 8 to June 14 as Flag week. He urged Ohioans to "pay homage to Old Glory and to those who have fought to make and keep us free."

Columbus Hikes Price To Farms

COLUMBUS, May 7—The price of milk from farmer to milk dealer will be two cents higher in Columbus in May than it was in the previous month.

The milk dealers said the price was increasing because of rising feed and production costs to the farmer. Dealers will pay $5.06 per 100 pounds for Class 1 April milk under federal regulations applying to the Columbus area. Milk prices for April, one year ago, were $1.20 lower.

Businessmen Introduced To Manager Of GE Factory

Circleville's businessmen Thursday were introduced to the community's newest business and industrial manager when Edward G. Grigg, operation engineer for General Electric Co., spoke before the Rotary Club in the Pickaway Arms.

Grigg was named last Saturday as the manager of the new $2.5 million plant now under construction. He was transferred here from the lamp department headquarters in Nela Park, Cleveland.

The youthful plant manager, speaking in a rich Virginia drawl, made his first public appearance here to acquaint himself with local business leaders, "so you will know me," he said.

He was introduced to Rotary Club members by Zack Taylor, assistant manager of GE lamp manufcturing in Nela Park.

Grigg told Rotary it was his personal aim to have the GE plant become an interested party in community affairs.

"We are proud to bring our new lamp plant to Circleville and we hope you are glad to have us," the manager declared.

"WHILE THE Circleville branch plant will be operated individually and as a single unit, we are still the property of some 250,000 stockholders in all our 40 different factories", Grigg said.

The local plant will specialize in the assembly of a new eight-foot slimline lamp which only recently has been developed. Other types of lamps manufactured by the firm include an 18-inch lamp and a four-foot tube.

"To look at our huge lamp department now," Grigg said, "it is difficult to believe when the florescent lamp was first developed its main purpose was an auxiliary light."

Other GE plants specialize in the manufacture of apparatus, air conditioning, appliance and merchandising and in atomic parts.

The plant will employ approximately 500 local employes of which about 80 percent will be women. Grigg pointed out that men will be hired to carry out the heavier duties.

"We have our own training program to teach our employes just what we want and how we want it done," Grigg stated.

The plant manager said his firm was fair on employe wages:

"WE SEEK TO pay wages that are right in all circumstances in view of what other employers have found proper in the community," Grigg declared.

He said GE employes would

The announcement said that the plane landed yesterday at the Erding air base near Munich. Numerous political refugees previously have employed airplanes to flee the Communist regime in Czechoslovakia.

Hospitals Warned Of Bad Supplies

COLUMBUS, May 7 — State Health Director John D. Porterfield warned city and county health commissioners today that there may be dangerously contaminated hospital supplies in the state.

He told the commissioners to warn hospitals against using all intravenous products of the Cutter Laboratories, of Berkley, Calif.

Dr. Porterfield acted on advice from the laboratories that contamination had been found in its dextrose 10 percent solution.

of the supreme court about a month ago."

The attorney general stated emphatically that actual seizure preparations have not been started. He declared:

"I have not seen, sent over to the White House, approved or advised the drafting of any seizure papers up to this moment."

Clark was scheduled to return to the White House later today for another conference with President Truman.

Other administration sources have said that the government is ready to use its seizure powers if other efforts fail to avert the nation-wide railroad shutdown.

Conferring with Steelman at the White House were Alvanley Johnston, heard of the engineers; David B. Robertson, chief of the firemen; and A. J. Glover, president of the switchmen's union.

The White House meetings opened as the first effects of the strike crisis were felt in the Mid-West. Some railroads there instituted today an embargo on shipments of livestock, live poultry and perishable food.

A SPOKESMAN for the Association of American Railroads said 18 lines had notified the AAR car-service division they would clamp on such a ban in preparation for the strike. It will go into effect on other roads tomorrow and Sunday.

The recommendations of a presidential fact-finding board for a 15-½ cent hourly pay boost and some rules changes for the three strike-threatening unions apparently will form the basis of Steelman's mediation efforts.

Sixteen non-operating rail unions and two other operating brotherhoods, the trainmen and conductors, accepted such a pay boost last Fall to settle their 1947 wage demands.

The engineers, firemen and switchmen turned down the proposal and continued to insist on their original demand for a minimum $3-a-day wage increase and additional changes in working rules.

$30 Watch Sold Three Times For $1 In Theft Case

A $30 watch was sold this week in Circleville at Dollar Day values after Harry Renick of New Holland reportedly stole the time piece from Pete Seyfang also of New Holland with final settlement ending up in Magistrate H. O. Eveland's court.

Seyfang signed an affidavit against Renick alledging the theft of a watch and pocket knife.

In justice of peace court it was learned Renick pawned the watch for $1. Sheriff Charles Radcliff then purchased the watch back for $1 and in turn Renick paid the sheriff $1.

In the exchange of dollar bills, Seyfang stood on the sidelines until his watch was returned by the sheriff. It cost Seyfang nothing.

Renick pleaded guilty to stealing the watch, but denied any knowledge of the pocket knife.

search, Dr. Oexemann tells them:

"Never before, since the discovery of the germ as the cause of bacterial disease have scientists stumbled upon anything so revolutionary in the field of medical research as a germ that feeds upon and poisons the germs that destroy human cell tissue."

Dr. Oexemann said that scientists believe it should be possible to inject bacteriophage in the blood stream, and so have it diffuse throughout the body and destroy germ-bearing bacteria wherever they contact.

"Some individuals," he said, "go so far as to speak of bacteriophage as being handed down from the blood stream of the mother to the child, thus making immunization to disease hereditary."

When scientists are enabled to control the bacteriophage germ, and to propagate it in the human body, the Golden Age, Dr. Oexemann says, of perpetual health will be a reality on earth.

Another War Hero Returning

Another of Pickaway County's war heroes is to be returned aboard the Transport Lawrence Victory for burial here, according to a War department announcement Friday.

He is Pfc. Robert J. Redman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Redman of 421 East Mill street, who died in France Oct. 2, 1944.

Private Redman enlisted in the U. S. Army Feb. 24, 1943, and was transferred to the European theater early in July of the same year.

Funeral arrangements are to be made with the Defenbaugh funeral home when the body arrives.

Arab-Jewish consultations over prospective candidates.

THE DECISION to let the British high commissioner find a suitable candidate for Jerusalem mayor was voted yesterday in the General Assembly.

This measure was placed before it by the trusteeship council and drew a large amount of fire.

Before Bevin's communication was received, Britain promised priority to communications out of Palestine from the consular truce commission in an effort to expedite United Nations efforts to halt Arab-Jewish warfare.

The disrupted communication mediums have hampered ceasefire and truce talks so seriously in recent days that President Truman on Tuesday offered to place a special plane at the disposal of any UN mission willing to fly to the trouble zone.

Solon Predicts Commie Bill May Be Too Tough

WASHINGTON, May 7—Rep. Mundt, (R) S. D., predicted today that the House UnAmerican Activities Committee faces a fight on the floor to prevent his "Communist - control" bill from being made too harsh to withstand a court test.

Mundt asserted that the committee which approved the measure will have a more difficult time "with our friends than with our opponents" when the bill comes up for passage this month.

He said that the committee undoubtedly will be called upon to defeat amendments to outlaw the U. S. Communist Party, to deny the Communists and front organizations the use of the mails, or to bar the party from the ballots. Mundt commented:

"The bill we have now in our opinion will be held constitutional in the courts. However there's a good deal of hysteria and our fight will be to prevent some of our over-zealous supporters from putting false teeth in the legislation which might invalidate it in the courts and make it unenforceable."

Mundt declared that he will insist that the principle of "exposure" rather than prosecution be retained in the bill when floor debate begins.

John Hay Estate Set At $56,339

The John W. Hay estate was valued at $56,339.54 in one of two inventory and appraisement papers filed Thursday for the approval of Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court.

Entered by Lena L. Hay, administratrix, the paper showed appraisement of real estate at $38,630.50; accounts receivable—$7,848.69; personal property at $7,845.35 and the remainder in bonds; notes and money.

Estate appraisers were John L. Spindler, Ralph Stevenson and H. C. Baum.

Value of the Charles F. List estate was set at $4,183 in inventory and appraisement papers filed Thursday by Clarence and Ernest G. List, co-administrators of the estate.

Real estate was evaluated at $2,500 and the remainder was in bonds, notes and money. The appraisers were Frank Bowling, Lawrence Krimmel and J. Wallace Crist.

Big 3 Blames Reds As A-Plan Accord Falters

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., May 7—Russia was accused today of torpedoing all United Nations efforts to achieve agreement on the control of atomic weapons.

The charge was made jointly by the United States, Britain and France coincident with an admission by the UN Atomic Energy Commission that because of Russian opposition it has failed to devise any control scheme.

The three nations placed full blame on Russia in bluntly advising the 11-member atomic group to abandon the attempt.

The conclusions were contained in a statement declaring that the commission has "reached an impasse" because of Russia's refusal to accept principles of the vetoless Baruch control and inspection plan which was evolved over a two-year period.

PART OF the plan originally formulated by the American elder statesman, Bernard Baruch, called for creation of an international atomic development authority. This body would have managerial control or ownership of all atomic energy activities "potentially dangerous to world security." It also would have power to inspect and license atomic activities.

The report made to the commission by America, Britain and France asserted that failure to achieve agreement arose primarily from the conflict between the East and West.

Sleeper Finds Pillow Is Poor Spot For Wallet

Anyone know of a safer place to hide money than under your pillow while you sleep?

H. B. Carlisle, who roomed with an 18-year-old Lexington, Ky, lad Thursday night at the American Hotel is in the market for suggestions.

Just to be on the safe side while he slept, Carlisle tucked his wallet under his pillow while he took his snooze, supposing the lad would shortly join him in a tryst with Morpheus.

However, when he awakened a short time later, both the youth and the wallet were missing, police were told.

Circleville police took the Lexington lad, identified as Arthur Abbitt, into custody at about 11:30 p. m. Thursday after Chillicothe police had nabbed him in a Circleville taxi, which the alleged thief had hired for a journey south.

Police Chief William F. McCrady, who brought Abbitt back to Circleville, said Abbitt had Carlisle's wallet but about $7 had been spent for cab fare.

Abbitt is being held in city jail accused of petty larceny.

Partial reason for that new life is the knowledge that the new General Electric Company's $2.5 million factory here "is going to drag Circleville out of its doldrums anyhow so we will be better off if we get out and push instead of dragging our feet."

"WE NEED the full support of all businessmen if Circleville business is to be sold to the public," Magill declared.

The Chamber of Commerce also has busied itself with a general improvement program to make the city an attractive place to visit and live as well as shop.

The six-point program now being pressed by the Chamber will include smoke control and Cleanup Week in an effort to keep the city clean.

On the program, too, is a plan to relocate the city disposal dump; a South end playground, veterans' housing project and beautifying the old soldiers' High street cemetery in preparation for Decoration Day.

Burglar Pleads Guilty; Other Hearings Awaited

Emerson Cain, 19, Pickaway Township, pleaded guilty Thursday afternoon when arraigned before Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court for burglary and larceny.

After entering his plea, the judge assigned Tom Renick as legal counsel for the youth and remanded him to the county jail pending pronouncement of sentence next week.

Cain was indicted with five others Tuesday in the May term grand jury session. Arraignment in court for the others is scheduled for next Thursday.

They are: Robert C. Lilly, 27, indicted on two counts of drawing a check with insufficient funds and obtaining property under false pretenses.

J. Corbett Martin was indicted for keeping a gambling room; a non-support indictment was returned against William L. Leisure of Bloomingsburg and Edna Tye of Columbus was named on a true bill for driving a motor vehicle without an operator's permit.

An indictment was returned against Robert L. Kirsch, 23, of Huntington, W. Va. However, his sentence will depend on action taken by the West Virginia court since he was returned there to face a similar charge of larceny and forgery.

Perpetual Health Hinges On Single Secret, Claim

search, Dr. Oexemann tells them:

"Never before, since the discovery of the germ as the cause of bacterial disease have scientists stumbled upon anything so revolutionary in the field of medical research as a germ that feeds upon and poisons the germs that destroy human cell tissue."

Dr. Oexemann said that scientists believe it should be possible to inject bacteriophage in the blood stream, and so have it diffuse throughout the body and destroy germ-bearing bacteria wherever they contact.

"Some individuals," he said, "go so far as to speak of bacteriophage as being handed down from the blood stream of the mother to the child, thus making immunization to disease hereditary."

When scientists are enabled to control the bacteriophage germ, and to propagate it in the human body, the Golden Age, Dr. Oexemann says, of perpetual health will be a reality on earth.

Another War Hero Returning

Another of Pickaway County's war heroes is to be returned aboard the Transport Lawrence Victory for burial here, according to a War department announcement Friday.

He is Pfc. Robert J. Redman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Redman of 421 East Mill street, who died in France Oct. 2, 1944.

Private Redman enlisted in the U. S. Army Feb. 24, 1943, and was transferred to the European theater early in July of the same year.

Funeral arrangements are to be made with the Defenbaugh funeral home when the body arrives.

Arab-Jewish consultations over prospective candidates.

THE DECISION to let the British high commissioner find a suitable candidate for Jerusalem mayor was voted yesterday in the General Assembly.

This measure was placed before it by the trusteeship council and drew a large amount of fire.

Before Bevin's communication was received, Britain promised priority to communications out of Palestine from the consular truce commission in an effort to expedite United Nations efforts to halt Arab-Jewish warfare.

The disrupted communication mediums have hampered ceasefire and truce talks so seriously in recent days that President Truman on Tuesday offered to place a special plane at the disposal of any UN mission willing to fly to the trouble zone.

Solon Predicts Commie Bill May Be Too Tough

WASHINGTON, May 7—Rep. Mundt, (R) S. D., predicted today that the House UnAmerican Activities Committee faces a fight on the floor to prevent his "Communist - control" bill from being made too harsh to withstand a court test.

Mundt asserted that the committee which approved the measure will have a more difficult time "with our friends than with our opponents" when the bill comes up for passage this month.

He said that the committee undoubtedly will be called upon to defeat amendments to outlaw the U. S. Communist Party, to deny the Communists and front organizations the use of the mails, or to bar the party from the ballots. Mundt commented:

"The bill we have now in our opinion will be held constitutional in the courts. However there's a good deal of hysteria and our fight will be to prevent some of our over-zealous supporters from putting false teeth in the legislation which might invalidate it in the courts and make it unenforceable."

Mundt declared that he will insist that the principle of "exposure" rather than prosecution be retained in the bill when floor debate begins.

John Hay Estate Set At $56,339

The John W. Hay estate was valued at $56,339.54 in one of two inventory and appraisement papers filed Thursday for the approval of Judge Sterling M. Lamb in Pickaway County probate court.

Entered by Lena L. Hay, administratrix, the paper showed appraisement of real estate at $38,630.50; accounts receivable—$7,848.69; personal property at $7,845.35 and the remainder in bonds, notes and money.

Estate appraisers were John L. Spindler, Ralph Stevenson and H. C. Baum.

Value of the Charles F. List estate was set at $4,183 in inventory and appraisement papers filed Thursday by Clarence and Ernest G. List, co-administrators of the estate.

Real estate was evaluated at $2,500 and the remainder was in bonds, notes and money. The appraisers were Frank Bowling, Lawrence Krimmel and J. Wallace Crist.

Repairs Made To Fire Hydrant

Repairs were being made Friday on the water hydrant on the corner of Washington and Logan streets, which had been damaged when hit sometime Thursday.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said he believed the damage was caused by a truck bumping the hydrant.

The barrel casing surrounding the pipe was broken, but the pipes remained undamaged.

Big 3 Blames Reds As A-Plan Accord Falters

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., May 7—Russia was accused today of torpedoing all United Nations efforts to achieve agreement on the control of atomic weapons.

The charge was made jointly by the United States, Britain and France coincident with an admission by the UN Atomic Energy Commission that because of Russian opposition it has failed to devise any control scheme.

The three nations placed full blame on Russia in bluntly advising the 11-member atomic group to abandon the attempt.

The conclusions were contained in a statement declaring that the commission has "reached an impasse" because of Russia's refusal to accept principles of the vetoless Baruch control and inspection plan which was evolved over a two-year period.

PART OF the plan originally formulated by the American elder statesman, Bernard Baruch, called for creation of an international atomic development authority. This body would have managerial control or ownership of all atomic energy activities "potentially dangerous to world security." It also would have power to inspect and license atomic activities.

The report made to the commission by America, Britain and France asserted that failure to achieve agreement arose primarily from the conflict between the East and West.

Sleeper Finds Pillow Is Poor Spot For Wallet

Anyone know of a safer place to hide money than under your pillow while you sleep?

H. B. Carlisle, who roomed with an 18-year-old Lexington, Ky, lad Thursday night at the American Hotel is in the market for suggestions.

Just to be on the safe side while he slept, Carlisle tucked his wallet under his pillow while he took his snooze, supposing the lad would shortly join him in a tryst with Morpheus.

However, when he awakened a short time later, both the youth and the wallet were missing, police were told.

Circleville police took the Lexington lad, identified as Arthur Abbitt, into custody at about 11:30 p. m. Thursday after Chillicothe police had nabbed him in a Circleville taxi, which the alleged thief had hired for a journey south.

Police Chief William F. McCrady, who brought Abbitt back to Circleville, said Abbitt had Carlisle's wallet but about $7 had been spent for cab fare.

Abbitt is being held in city jail accused of petty larceny.

past," declared that the stark realization that "our city can decline rather than grow" has given the group a shot in the arm which has given it a new lease on life.

Partial reason for that new life is the knowledge that the new General Electric Company's $2.5 million factory here "is going to drag Circleville out of its doldrums anyhow so we will be better off if we get out and push instead of dragging our feet."

"WE NEED the full support of all businessmen if Circleville business is to be sold to the public," Magill declared.

The Chamber of Commerce also has busied itself with a general improvement program to make the city an attractive place to visit and live as well as shop.

The six-point program now being pressed by the Chamber will include smoke control and Cleanup Week in an effort to keep the city clean.

On the program, too, is a plan to relocate the city disposal dump; a South end playground, veterans' housing project and beautifying the old soldiers' High street cemetery in preparation for Decoration Day.

Burglar Pleads Guilty; Other Hearings Awaited

Emerson Cain, 19, Pickaway Township, pleaded guilty Thursday afternoon when arraigned before Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court for burglary and larceny.

After entering his plea, the judge assigned Tom Renick as legal counsel for the youth and remanded him to the county jail pending pronouncement of sentence next week.

Cain was indicted with five others Tuesday in the May term grand jury session. Arraignment in court for the others is scheduled for next Thursday.

They are: Robert C. Lilly, 27, indicted on two counts of drawing a check with insufficient funds and obtaining property under false pretenses.

J. Corbett Martin was indicted for keeping a gambling room; a non-support indictment was returned against William L. Leisure of Bloomingsburg and Edna Tye of Columbus was named on a true bill for driving a motor vehicle without an operator's permit.

An indictment was returned against Robert L. Kirsch, 23, of Huntington, W. Va. However, his sentence will depend on action taken by the West Virginia court since he was returned there to face a similar charge of larceny and forgery.

Gov. Val Peterson of Nebraska said in Lincoln that 2,000 members of the Nebraska National Guard have been alerted because of the strike situation in Omaha.

"We hope," the company said, "the filing of the suit means that the UPW is finally ready to respect and obey the courts."

QUESTION QUITE SIMPLE

'Operation America' Said Tops On Red Plan List

BANGOR, Me., May 7 — Gen. George C. Kenney declared today that the question before the nation is "quite simple and direct—when will the Communist crowd start 'Operation America.' "

The commanding general of the Strategic Air Command outlined the prerequisites of defense of the United States in a speech before the State Federation of Women's Clubs here.

He called for a balanced military establishment, but said that unless that establishment includes the best Air Force in the world and "we do get into another war, the United States as we know it may cease to exist."

Kenney said that no one even speculates any more about what people are challenging our kind of democracy our kind of government, our civilization. Referring to Communist nation's plans for "Operation America," he said:

"WHAT THAT date is I don't know and I doubt if anyone, even the Communists themselves, can name it, but I believe that it will be as soon as they feel that they can win a conflict against us.

"They are driving now, building up a huge air force, constructing an untold number of submarines and training and maintaining an army larger than the one we had in the field at the peak of World War II.

"They are leaving no stone unturned in their endeavor to solve the secrets of atomic energy and it will not be more than a few years at best before they will possess a stockpile of atom bombs which may tempt them to start their bombers on the way to smash our centers of industry and population."

Gen. Kenney said the Russians have made over 40,000 aircraft in a single year, and turned out huge numbers of tanks and heavy artillery that "excited the admiration of the world. The general said that they can do it again.

Gen. Kenney stressed that any attack on the United States would come from the north polar region route, and would aim to destroy our centers of industry and population. He said:

"Following this ruthless assault may come airborne troops to seize key points of the country before we recover from the shock of seeing every major city north of the San Francisco-St. Louis-Washington line wiped out by a comparatively few loads of atomic bombs, super explosives, super-incendiaries of whatever means of mass destruction happens to be in vogue at the time."

U.S. Compared To Dinosaur

COLUMBUS, May 7—The United States is in danger of becoming as extinct as the dinosaur.

This warning came from Alfred B. Bonds Jr., chief training adviser of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Bonds told the National Association of Educational Buyers in Columbus yesterday that "the dinosaurs were probably the most powerful creatures who ever walked the earth. From the Point of sheer physical strength they should still be among us as our rulers. But they were all body and no head. The dinosaur perished because he lacked the intellect to direct his vast strength."

The former member of the President's commission on higher education pointed out that the government is spending six percent of the national income for defense and less than one half of one percent for higher education.

Copley Pupils Call Off Strike

AKRON, May 7—Students at nearby Copley high school returned to their classrooms today to end a three-day "strike."

The pupils voted to return yesterday pending action by the school board on an arbitration plan to settle a dispute which arose over the nonhiring of Principal Frank Weiss.

F. G. McKibben, president of the Copley school board, said no disciplinary action would be taken against the 250 pupils.

Rescue Planes Resume Search

WESTOVER, Mass., May 7—ATC rescue planes from Bermuda, Newfoundland and Labrador bases resumed today the hunt for two airmen believed down in the North Atlantic in a private flight to Eire.

Three B-17s from Kindley Field, Bermuda, two from Harmon Field, Newfoundland, and one from Goose Bay, Labrador, with two OA-10s from Harmon and Kindley fields took off in the hunt today for the unreported DC-3, which left Gander, Newfoundland, Tuesday.

Missing with the plane were Lewis Parker, veteran Dover, Mass., pilot, and Ralph Warnock, 27, Los Angeles. They were ferrying the plane to England for its owners, the Superior Oil Co., of Washington, D. C.

"OUTSTANDING YOUNG PIANIST in the United States" is the title of 20-year-old Seymour Lipkin of Detroit, who sits at the piano in New York with Pianist Vladimir Horowitz and Mrs. Sergei Rachmaninoff, widow of the composer whose estate made possible the Rachmaninoff Fund piano contest and $1,000 first prize. Fond Memory Brings Suit

COLUMBUS, May 7—Mrs. Arletta Collins of Columbus says the Warner P. Simpson Co. is responsible for her divorce from her former husband, Le Roy A. Patzer and she wants $30,000 from the firm.

Her suit in common pleas court says her former husband became "nervous, irritable, morose, fretful, excitable and ill-tempered" after he fell 25 feet from a scaffolding in 1944 when the company employed him as a painter.

Mrs. Collins says this caused her to be "deprived of his society, companionship, affection, fellowship and assistance, as well as his earning power." Mrs. Collins has since remarried.

Wallace Words Intrigue Reds

AKRON, May 7—Communists in Europe hang upon Henry Wallace's every word in looking for disparaging remarks about the United States on which they can quote him.

This is the belief of H. A. Bradley, president of the AFL International Chemical Workers union, who recently returned to Akron from the international labor organization world conference in Paris.

Bradley said that Wallace, third party candidate for the presidency, was widely quoted by Communists in the Italian election campaign.

CLEVELAND, May 7 — Business is a sexless thing.

That is the firm belief of Miss Olive Gately, vice-president of Fuller, Smith and Ross, Inc., Cleveland advertising firm.

Miss Gately addressed more than 200 members of the Interclub Council of Greater Cleveland last night at the group's first annual dinner. She declared:

"In the business world there are only people with brains, skill, knowledge and background —not men and women."

She added that "sex is a crutch that broke long ago."

Pen Inmate In Solitary

COLUMBUS, May 7—An Ohio penitentiary inmate was in solitary confinement today—for an indefinite period—for taking part in dope smuggling within the prison.

Acting Warden Ralph W. Avis withheld the man's name but said he had worked in the pen postoffice and so was able to pick up the packages undetected.

Alvis said the packages of benzedrine were addressed to a man at the London prison farm, but sent to the penitentiary. The break came when one shipment was sent to the prison farm before it could be intercepted.

The warden said the seized shipment represented a profit of from $1,000 to $1,500. He said the drug sale had been going on for several months.

Pen Inmate In Solitary

COLUMBUS, May 7—An Ohio penitentiary inmate was in solitary confinement today—for an indefinite period—for taking part in dope smuggling within the prison.

Acting Warden Ralph W. Avis withheld the man's name but said he had worked in the pen postoffice and so was able to pick up the packages undetected.

Alvis said the packages of benzedrine were addressed to a man at the London prison farm, but sent to the penitentiary. The break came when one shipment was sent to the prison farm before it could be intercepted.

The warden said the seized shipment represented a profit of from $1,000 to $1,500. He said the drug sale had been going on for several months.

Fond Memory Brings Suit

COLUMBUS, May 7—Mrs. Arletta Collins of Columbus says the Warner P. Simpson Co. is responsible for her divorce from her former husband, Le Roy A. Patzer and she wants $30,000 from the firm.

Her suit in common pleas court says her former husband became "nervous, irritable, morose, fretful, excitable and ill-tempered" after he fell 25 feet from a scaffolding in 1944 when the company employed him as a painter.

Mrs. Collins says this caused her to be "deprived of his society, companionship, affection, fellowship and assistance, as well as his earning power." Mrs. Collins has since remarried.

Many Thanks

For the votes given me by the voters of Pickaway County.

SWISS CHEESE FRONT

TENNESSEE and Texas will not take part in the revolt of some Southerners against President Truman. A Tennessee state convention rejected a proposal to bolt if the President were renominated, although this was proposed by the supposedly all powerful boss Edward H. Crump.

In Texas, too, the state Democratic executive committee has voted, 35 to 14, to "accord full support to every nominee of the party." This includes the President. Virginia and Mississippi members of the electoral college may bolt the Democratic ticket if they wish, but Texas will not go along.

Apparently the anti-administration Texans have profited by their 1944 experience. Then they tried to pledge the delegates to the electoral college to vote against President Roosevelt, and failed by the narrowest margin to gain a state convention's indorsement of this move. Then they ran a bolting ticket, called humorously the "Regulars," and polled only 135,000 votes to Roosevelt's 821,000. Even the Republicans, who generally do not figure much in Democratic Texas, did better, with 191,000.

Without Tennessee and Texas, the proposed anti-Southern Truman front appears to have some large holes in it.

HUMAN NATURE NOT NEW

THE LIFE of ancient Pompeii, just as it was carried on before the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius brought all activity to instant stoppage, is the subject of an exhibit of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art. Unfortunately, though naturally, the Museum felt that its duty was to display ancient art. It did not therefore show what visitors to Italy see with amusement in the ruins, the wall-scribblings that prove that ancient Pompeiians were not so unlike Americans today.

"Fools' names, like fools' faces,
Are often seen in public places."

That went for Pompeii as for America. The Pompeiian equivalent of "Johnny loves Mary" and "Billy Smith is a chump" was to be found on many a blank wall.

There is no greater error than to assume that human nature is a modern invention.

GOING TO THE MOON?

ROCKET trips to the moon may come true within the lifetime of many today. Over one-fourth of the scientists polled by the Guggenheim Foundation expected to see definite progress within the next ten years.

When the rocket line goes into operation, will it imitate the highfaluting names of old-time railroads, many of which included cities to which the roads never had any possibility of running? If so, we may expect to see the Moon Line rockets labeled, "Mars, Jupiter and Milky Way Transport."

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Economist, undoubtedly one of the most important weeklies in England, if not in all the world, has this to say of ERP:

"In time of peace, in order to aid nations geographically remote and politically separate from the Americas, at a time of great internal shortages, the United States is ready to give away over $5 billion worth of commodities as the first installment of a wider programme, to give them for peaceful economic reconstruction and, save for minor exceptions, to give them without political conditions of any sort. A year ago, the project would have been inconceivable—Congress was then making desperately heavy weather over only $400 million for aid to Greece and Turkey. Ten years ago, such an initiative would have driven the nation en masse into the arms of the America Firsters. And search back as one may through the annals of the United States or of any other Power, there is no record of a comparable act of inspired and generous diplomacy."

It adds:

"It will be difficult, after this demonstration of international solidarity, to go on repeating the old gibes about American isolationism, the old complacent references to American political immaturity. In recent months, the American public, in its eagerness for information, its sustained interest in foreign affairs, and in its acceptance of positive and onerous international responsibility, is rapidly qualifying for the title of the least isolationist and self-absorbed of peoples."

But I fear that The Economist does not altogether grasp the reason for the change in American attitude. The editors of this magazine attribute much of the success of ERP to Messrs. Marshall, Acheson, Vandenberg and Douglas. They might have added Bernard Baruch, Herbert Hoover, Christian Herter and dozens of others.

And there is danger in any misunderstanding about ERP. The American people do not want it to be another costly flop like the British Loan. They do not expect ERP to be dissipated and wasted. As a matter of fact, they could not afford to have it dissipated and wasted.

The American people do not want a war with Soviet Russia or any other country. They do not believe that such a war will benefit the victor any more than the vanquished. They know that the last war cost more than $300,000,000,000 and left the country with a debt of $252,000,000,000. A government budget of roughly $40,000,000 000. They are convinced that the next war will alter their economic system and devastate their social and political life.

Ergo, they are willing to take out a time insurance policy and pay a high rate. If Soviet Russia is contained east of the Elbe, north of the Italian-Greek-Turkish line in the Mediterranean, out of the Near East altogether, out of China, peace may for a considerable period be possible.

This formula involves the revival of the economies of 17 or more nations. It requires an American underwriting of their powers of economic and political survival. It forces upon the United States the responsibility of sustaining a standard of living among these peoples, high enough to discourage revolution, high enough to create a climate antagonistic to Communistic blandishments among the proletariat and the intellectuals—the latter being particularly prone to travel in alien and distant green pastures.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

STRATEGY AS IN WAR

WINNING strategy in bridge is much akin to that in successful warfare. Often it consists of keeping the enemy uninformed—or, better, misinformed—about your own situation and what you are doing, while knowing exactly what he has and what he is up to. A man who can display a genius for that sort of thing at the bridge table should also be able in helping plot the defense of his country. In fact, just such a man is—and how!

You have there the bidding actually done in a game involving three officers of the United States Military Academy at West Point and one civilian visitor, who was in the East seat.

The South player was then Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther, a young instructor of electricity and chemistry. He later became a famous bidge tournament director, secretary of the Vanderbilt Cup Committee and Honorary Member of the American Contract Bridge League. But, more important, his military career saw him advance to the rank of Major General, at 44 the youngest Major General in World War II, as Chief of Staff to Mark Clark's Fourth Army. He is now the Director of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, and as such the top technical man in our defense set-up, his chiefs being the Secretary of National Defense and the Secretaries of Army, Navy, Air Force and Supplies.

When he heard East bid 1-No Trump, he made the psychic bid of 2-Clubs feeling sure his opponents could stop that suit and might go on in No Trumps. They did. Whereupon he refrained from the temptation to double and calmly scored six diamond tricks. You will note that they could have made game in either hearts or spades, and no doubt would have if he had bid his diamonds. No wonder he is tops among military men:

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

THE DINING ROOM again for a late dinner. Henry in his chair, his square, blunt-featured face bent above the carving knife he was sharpening. Gram, going elegant for a moment and saying to Don, "I must show you our collection of pewter after dinner, Mr. Ogden." John, tying on Judy's bib, his big hands deft. Anne, in a green velvet dress, bringing the peppers and salts from the sideboard that Annabel had forgotten again. Helen, animated, gay, looking at Don with eyes that she hoped were not too speculative, thinking, with the cool part of her brain, "I'm a fool to risk my security here. I hope you're worth it." And, at last, Julia coming in from the kitchen ahead of Annabel, taking the chair John drew out for her, glancing around in her quick, all-seeing way and saying. "Mother's not down yet? That's odd. Annabel——"

There was a sudden clatter as Annabel dropped her tray.

Julia looked at her. "You—what?"

"I forgot her this mornin'. I never took her breakfuss to her. She didden phone me down like she ginerally does and we was so busy cleanin' up——"

"You didn't take Mrs. Kingsley's breakfast to her at all?"

"No'm."

Julia rose.

"Pick up your tray, Annabel. Go on with the dinner, every one. I'll be back in a moment."

She moved swiftly toward the hall. Hardly a day had passed all these years that she had not gone in to give a morning greeting to her mother. Hardly a day. But today there had been too much to do. The torn decorations to remove. The furniture and rugs to put back in place. The candle drippings, the soiled glasses, the crumbs—and then the dogs upsetting the Christmas tree.

Her mother might have thought of some of these things. She might have made allowances for today and if she had happened to telephone down for her tray just when everybody had run out to help with the tree, she could have called again.

She could have but of course she wouldn't. Really, there were times when her haughty sensitivity was most trying. She was probably sitting this minute in high dudgeon by her window waiting for her daughter to appear and apologize for her neglect, determined not to put in an appearance until she had done so. She made her own misery, Julia thought. She really did. Last night at the party—all the time.

These thoughts were going through her head as she started for the hall. Then as she reached it she, and the others behind her, heard a car stop outside, quick feet coming up the steps and over the porch, the opening and shutting of the big front door and a man's voice shouting in jubilance, "Hey! Anybody home? Here's the prodigal son in time for Christmas! Where's my welcome? Hey!"

It was Alec. He stood there in the open doorway in his Navy greatcoat, a vital, laughing, confident figure, his arms spread wide, and his eyes running like quicksilver over the roomful of people. But only Don saw the look that came and went in them as they touched on Anne who stood, a little separated from the rest, in her green velvet dress with the sun on her hair and her hand on her heart.

This was the moment, Anne thought. This was what she had been waiting for so many months. Now she would know. Now everything would get settled. She could have wished Alec had not appeared when the family was around. It might have been easier if they had met alone first. This way there was a constraint upon her, a consciousness of watching eyes—John's, Helen's, Don's—yet in the next breath these were completely forgotten.

For Alec had spoken to her. "Anne! You—here? How super!" And with the sound of his voice the magic came flooding back. She saw him give a quick hug and kiss to his mother who was closest, grasp Henry's hand as he passed him at the table, and then, without looking at anyone else, come swooping toward her with the swift, purposeful movement she remembered.

She might have breathed his name. She did not know. She might have stepped forward to meet him. She did not know that, either. All she was really sure of was the wild triumphant joy that surged through her. And then she felt his arms hard about her, his cold firm cheek against hers (he'll kiss me later) and, looking up, she saw his blue eyes bright upon her with surprise still in them that she was there.

"You didn't—get my letter?" she asked shakily.

"What letter?"

"The big fat one——"

What she was saying was so unimportant with so many more important things to be said. But there was the family still about them—he belonged to them, too. She must wait. She drew back a little with a murmured, "Never mind now."

He was remembering them himself, however. Holding her close with one arm, he was moving about greeting them all. A kiss for Gram. An affectionate clap on John's shoulders. A kiss for Helen—"Prettier than ever, aren't you?"—and then he was letting Anne go and was bending down to little Judy, making friends with her, coaxing her, winning her (as he does everyone) in spite of her shyness. Finally he straightened up.

"Well, I'll be——! Why doesn't anybody tell me what goes on around here? To think of this little piece arriving and her Uncle Alec never knowing!"

Julia defended herself softly. "We did write you, Alec."

"You just don't stay in one place long enough to have our letters catch up with you," John said.

Alec nodded. "It's a great life, the Navy." He was looking at Don now, putting out his hand, saying, "I don't believe——"

"Oh! I'm sorry!" Anne rushed breathlessly into an introduction. "Alec, this is my very good friend, Donald Ogden."

The two men measured each other by grip, by searching glance. Anne, standing a little aside now, saw them as if she were a stranger to them both. Alec, tall and slender, full of quick grace and charm, with the vitality of superb health, and Don, his big body wearily borne, his scarred, cynical face more interesting than attractive. Alec has everything, was her thought; and pride, mingled with an affectionate pity for what Don lacked, filled her.

Then something turned her attention to John and she looked his way. To her astonishment his eyes were on her with an expression in them she had never seen there before, that she could not really be sure was there now, so instantly was it banished. But it had seemed to her to be one of pain.

"Because Alec and I have what he and Helen have lost," she told herself.

And then all sharp and separate impressions vanished in the moments that followed. There was Julia, starting again for the hall to make peace with her mother. And there was Madame Kingsley herself appearing unexpectedly and saying with well-bred acidity, "Now that the Lieutenant Commander has arrived, I suppose I must do my own foraging. No matter how I feel." There was Auntie coming in, her slippers slapping on the polished floor, her white smile breaking wide across her dark face. And Nick, a gray shadow, adding his murmured greeting to hers. And Tom, bobbing his bullet head, and Annabel staring. And little Hyacinth and Moe peeping from behind the half-open kitchen door. There was the sound of Henry sharpening his knife again. And Julia saying, "Mother, I'm so sorry for everything! I didn't know you didn't feel well. What's the matter?" And Madame Kingsley's reply lost as Gram took command with her usual vigor: "Alec! Take your coat off and act as if you were going to stay with us for a little while! Tom, bring a chair for the Commander! Annabel! Get a move on! Don't stand there gawking like that! Set a place here next to Miss Anne. Well! Mrs. Kingsley, are you going to condescend to have dinner with us today? What's that? If you're not wanted—not expected—— Good heavens! Must we send you an engraved invitation?"

Foresee Greek Government Win Over Guerrillas Soon | Regular Forces Closing In On Communist-led Rebels

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Military experts in Washington anticipate a smashing victory by Greek government forces over Communist-led guerrillas this month.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the United States Military Mission in Greece, is personally observing the spring offensive against the Communist bands in the southwestern Hellenic area.

Operating under Van Fleet's advice, a reinforced corps under Lt. Gen. Tsakalotos is closing in on the rebels. The government troops, numbering more than 30,000, are being aided by sea patrols in the Bay of Corinth.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet

It is expected that the rebels will be enveloped and that one of the most troublesome elements in the entire Greek situation will soon be wiped out.

• • • •

● TRUMAN SITS TIGHT—Despite the roar from Congress about the Commerce department's refusal to turn over a loyalty report on atomic scientist Edward U. Condon, there is little possibility that congressmen can do anything about it.

President Truman has ordered the executive departments to withhold any loyalty information until he specifically authorizes release of the data. And Mr. Truman apparently is going to stick by that decision.

Although Congress can pass resolution after resolution requesting that the FBI report on Dr. Condon's loyalty be delivered to the House un-American activities committee, none of these can actually force the president or his departments to divulge any information.

The only way Congress could force release of the data would be to pass a new law—which, of course, the president could veto.

• • • •

● DEFENSE STEPCHILD—The 70-air group program is no fledgling. It is nearly three years old. The idea started at the war's end when the Air Force drew up a blueprint of its continuing needs as part of a peace-enforcing military establishment.

Until recently the program won few friends. Economy was the watchword in Washington, and that meant no large post-war military expenditures.

A year ago Air Secretary Stuart Symington and Gen. Carl Spaatz pleaded for the 70-group program before the air policy commission, appointed by President Truman to study and report on America's declining air power. The commission endorsed the plan. The congressional aviation policy board went through much the same procedure.

Russia, plus political considerations in a presidential election year, touched off the drive for the program. Soviet aggression caused the president to plead for a temporary draft and universal military training, and Republican leaders in Congress saw in increased air power a means to bolster national defense without responding to the president's request.

• • • •

● SALESMAN MARSHALL—Secretary of State George C. Marshall faces one more foreign salesmanship job before the present session of Congress ends. This will be the method and extent of United States participation in the western European mutual defense alliance.

U. S. Aid In Alliance Discussed

Any such treaty must be ratified by Congress.

There are indications that the Truman administration does not desire to enter into a full alliance to guarantee completely the borders and sovereignty of all the signatory powers.

More likely, a program will be worked out whereby the United States will agree to come to the defense of the other signatory powers only after an act of aggression has brought all the others into a concerted move against the aggressor.

Such a plan would have two desired results:

1—Should the aggressor be Russia, it would prevent Communist propagandists from claiming that the United States was "interfering" in European sovereignty by leading a common move against the aggressor.

2—It would give the United States an advance guarantee against other western European powers deciding to stand on the sidelines while the United States carried the ball in any future struggle between east and west.

Apparently the anti-administration Texans have profited by their 1944 experience. Then they tried to pledge the delegates to the electoral college to vote against President Roosevelt, and failed by the narrowest margin to gain a state convention's indorsement of this move. Then they ran a bolting ticket, called humorously the "Regulars," and polled only 135,000 votes to Roosevelt's 821,000. Even the Republicans, who generally do not figure much in Democratic Texas, did better, with 191,000.

Without Tennessee and Texas, the proposed anti-Southern Truman front appears to have some large holes in it.

HUMAN NATURE NOT NEW

THE LIFE of ancient Pompeii, just as it was carried on before the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius brought all activity to instant stoppage, is the subject of an exhibit of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art. Unfortunately, though naturally, the Museum felt that its duty was to display ancient art. It did not therefore show what visitors to Italy see with amusement in the ruins, the wall-scribblings that prove that ancient Pompeiians were not so unlike Americans today.

"Fools' names, like fools' faces,
Are often seen in public places."

That went for Pompeii as for America. The Pompeiian equivalent of "Johnny loves Mary" and "Billy Smith is a chump" was to be found on many a blank wall.

There is no greater error than to assume that human nature is a modern invention.

GOING TO THE MOON?

ROCKET trips to the moon may come true within the lifetime of many today. Over one-fourth of the scientists polled by the Guggenheim Foundation expected to see definite progress within the next ten years.

When the rocket line goes into operation, will it imitate the highfaluting names of old-time railroads, many of which included cities to which the roads never had any possibility of running? If so, we may expect to see the Moon Line rockets labeled, "Mars, Jupiter and Milky Way Transport."

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The Economist, undoubtedly one of the most important weeklies in England, if not in all the world, has this to say of ERP:

"In time of peace, in order to aid nations geographically remote and politically separate from the Americas, at a time of great internal shortages, the United States is ready to give away over $5 billion worth of commodities as the first instalment of a wider programme, to give them for peaceful economic reconstruction and, save for minor exceptions, to give them without political conditions of any sort. A year ago, the project would have been inconceivable—Congress was then making desperately heavy weather over only $400 million for aid to Greece and Turkey. Ten years ago, such an initiative would have driven the nation en masse into the arms of the America Firsters. And search back as one may through the annals of the United States or of any other Power, there is no record of a comparable act of inspired and generous diplomacy."

It adds:

"It will be difficult, after this demonstration of international solidarity, to go on repeating the old gibes about American isolationism, the old complacent references to American political immaturity. In recent months, the American public, in its eagerness for information, its sustained interest in foreign affairs, and in its acceptance of positive and onerous international responsibility, is rapidly qualifying for the title of the least isolationist and self-absorbed of peoples."

But I fear that The Economist does not altogether grasp the reason for the change in American attitude. The editors of this magazine attribute much of the success of ERP to Messrs. Marshall, Acheson, Vandenberg and Douglas. They might have added Bernard Baruch, Herbert Hoover, Christian Herter and dozens of others.

And there is danger in any misunderstanding about ERP. The American people do not want it to be another costly flop like the British Loan. They do not expect ERP to be dissipated and wasted. As a matter of fact, they could not afford to have it dissipated and wasted.

The American people do not want a war with Soviet Russia or any other country. They do not believe that such a war will benefit the victor any more than the vanquished. They know that the last war cost more than $300,000,000,000 and left the country with a debt of $252,000,000,000. A government budget of roughly $40,000,000,000. They are convinced that the next war will alter their economic system and devastate their social and political life.

Ergo, they are willing to take out a time insurance policy and pay a high rate. If Soviet Russia is contained east of the Elbe, north of the Italian-Greek-Turkish line in the Mediterranean, out of the Near East altogether, out of China, peace may for a considerable period be possible.

This formula involves the revival of the economies of 17 or more nations. It requires an American underwriting of their powers of economic and political survival. It forces upon the United States the responsibility of sustaining a standard of living among these peoples, high enough to discourage revolution, high enough to create a climate antagonistic to Communistic blandishments among the proletariat and the intellectuals—the latter being particularly prone to travel in alien and distant green pastures.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

STRATEGY AS IN WAR

WINNING strategy in bridge is much akin to that in successful warfare. Often it consists of keeping the enemy uninformed—or, better, misinformed—about your own situation and what you are doing, while knowing exactly what he has and what he is up to. A man who can display a genius for that sort of thing at the bridge table should also be able in helping plot the defense of his country. In fact, just such a man is—and how!

You have there the bidding actually done in a game involving three officers of the United States Military Academy at West Point and one civilian visitor, who was in the East seat.

The South player was then Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenther, a young instructor of electricity and chemistry. He later became a famous bidge tournament director, secretary of the Vanderbilt Cup Committee and Honorary Member of the American Contract Bridge League. But, more important, his military career saw him advance to the rank of Major General, at 44 the youngest Major General in World War II, as Chief of Staff to Mark Clark's Fourth Army. He is now the Director of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, and as such the top technical man in our defense set-up, his chiefs being the Secretary of National Defense and the Secretaries of Army, Navy, Air Force and Supplies.

When he heard East bid 1-No Trump, he made the psychic bid of 2-Clubs feeling sure his opponents could stop that suit and might go on in No Trumps. They did. Whereupon he refrained from the temptation to double and calmly scored six diamond tricks. You will note that they could have made game in either hearts or spades, and no doubt would have if he had bid his diamonds. No wonder he is tops among military men:

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

THE DINING ROOM again for a late dinner. Henry in his chair, his square, blunt-featured face bent above the carving knife he was sharpening. Gram, going elegant for a moment and saying to Don, "I must show you our collection of pewter after dinner, Mr. Ogden." John, tying on Judy's bib, his big hands deft. Anne, in a green velvet dress, bringing the peppers and salts from the sideboard that Annabel had forgotten again. Helen, animated, gay, looking at Don with eyes that she hoped were not too speculative, thinking, with the cool part of her brain, "I'm a fool to risk my security here. I hope you're worth it." And, at last, Julia coming in from the kitchen ahead of Annabel, taking the chair John drew out for her, glancing around in her quick, all-seeing way and saying. "Mother's not down yet? That's odd. Annabel——"

There was a sudden clatter as Annabel dropped her tray.

Julia looked at her. "You—what?"

"I forgot her this mornin'. I never took her breakfuss to her. She didden phone me down like she ginerally does and we was so busy cleanin' up——"

"You didn't take Mrs. Kingsley's breakfast to her at all?"

"No'm."

Julia rose.

"Pick up your tray, Annabel. Go on with the dinner, every one. I'll be back in a moment."

She moved swiftly toward the hall. Hardly a day had passed all these years that she had not gone in to give a morning greeting to her mother. Hardly a day. But today there had been too much to do. The torn decorations to remove. The furniture and rugs to put back in place. The candle drippings, the spoiled glasses, the crumbs—and then the dogs upsetting the Christmas tree.

Her mother might have thought of some of these things. She might have made allowances for today and if she had happened to telephone down for her tray just when everybody had run out to help with the tree, she could have called again.

She could have but of course she wouldn't. Really, there were times when her haughty sensitivity was most trying. She was probably sitting this minute in high dudgeon by her window waiting for her daughter to appear and apologize for her neglect, determined not to put in an appearance until she had done so. She made her own misery, Julia thought. She really did. Last night at the party—all the time.

These thoughts were going through her head as she started for the hall. Then as she reached it she, and the others behind her, heard a car stop outside, quick feet coming up the steps and over the porch, the opening and shutting of the big front door and a man's voice shouting in jubilance, "Hey! Anybody home? Here's the prodigal son in time for Christmas! Where's my welcome? Hey!"

It was Alec. He stood there in the open doorway in his Navy greatcoat, a vital, laughing, confident figure, his arms spread wide, and his eyes running like quicksilver over the roomful of people. But only Don saw the look that came and went in them as they touched on Anne who stood, a little separated from the rest, in her green velvet dress with the sun on her hair and her hand on her heart.

This was the moment, Anne thought. This was what she had been waiting for so many months. Now she would know. Now everything would get settled. She could have wished Alec had not appeared when the family was around. It might have been easier if they had met alone first. This way there was a constraint upon her, a consciousness of watching eyes—John's, Helen's, Don's—yet in the next breath these were completely forgotten.

For Alec had spoken to her. "Anne! You—here? How super!" And with the sound of his voice the magic came flooding back. She saw him give a quick hug and kiss to his mother who was closest, grasp Henry's hand as he passed him at the table, and then, without looking at anyone else, come swooping toward her with the swift, purposeful movement she remembered.

She might have breathed his name. She did not know. She might have stepped forward to meet him. She did not know that, either. All she was really sure of was the wild triumphant joy that surged through her. And then she felt his arms hard about her, his cold firm cheek against hers (he'll kiss me later) and, looking up, she saw his blue eyes bright upon her with surprise still in them that she was there.

"You didn't—get my letter?" she asked shakily.

"What letter?"

"The big fat one——"

What she was saying was so unimportant with so many more important things to be said. But there was the family still about them—he belonged to them, too. She must wait. She drew back a little with a murmured, "Never mind now."

He was remembering them himself, however. Holding her close with one arm, he was moving about greeting them all. A kiss for Gram. An affectionate clap on John's shoulders. A kiss for Helen—"Prettier than ever, aren't you?"—and then he was letting Anne go and was bending down to little Judy, making friends with her, coaxing her, winning her (as he does everyone) in spite of her shyness. Finally he straightened up.

"Well, I'll be——! Why doesn't anybody tell me what goes on around here? To think of this little piece arriving and her Uncle Alec never knowing!"

Julia defended herself softly. "We did write you, Alec."

"You just don't stay in one place long enough to have our letters catch up with you," John said.

Alec nodded. "It's a great life, the Navy." He was looking at Don now, putting out his hand, saying, "I don't believe——"

"Oh! I'm sorry!" Anne rushed breathlessly into an introduction. "Alec, this is my very good friend, Donald Ogden."

The two men measured each other by grip, by searching glance. Anne, standing a little aside now, saw them as if she were a stranger to them both. Alec, tall and slender, full of quick grace and charm, with the vitality of superb health, and Don, his big body wearily borne, his scarred, cynical face more interesting than attractive. Alec has everything, was her thought; and pride, mingled with an affectionate pity for what Don lacked, filled her.

Then something turned her attention to John and she looked his way. To her astonishment his eyes were on her with an expression in them she had never seen there before, that she could not really be sure was there now, so instantly was it banished. But it had seemed to her to be one of pain.

"Because Alec and I have what he and Helen have lost," she told herself.

And then all sharp and separate impressions vanished in the moments that followed. There was Julia, starting again for the hall to make peace with her mother. And there was Madame Kingsley herself appearing unexpectedly and saying with well-bred acidity, "Now that the Lieutenant Commander has arrived, I suppose I must do my own foraging. No matter how I feel." There was Auntie coming in, her slippers slapping on the polished floor, her white smile breaking wide across her dark face. And Nick, a gray shadow, adding his murmured greeting to hers. And Tom, bobbing his bullet head, and Annabel staring. And little Hyacinth and Moe peeping from behind the half-open kitchen door. There was the sound of Henry sharpening his knife again. And Julia saying, "Mother, I'm so sorry for everything! I didn't know you didn't feel well. What's the matter?" And Madame Kingsley's reply lost as Gram took command with her usual vigor: "Alec! Take your coat off and act as if you were going to stay with us for a little while! Tom, bring a chair for the Commander! Annabel! Get a move on! Don't stand there gawking like that! Set a place here next to Miss Anne. Well! Mrs. Kingsley, are you going to condescend to have dinner with us today? What's that? If you're not wanted—not expected—— Good heavens! Must we send you an engraved invitation?"

Foresee Greek Government Win Over Guerrillas Soon | Regular Forces Closing In On Communist-led Rebels

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Military experts in Washington anticipate a smashing victory by Greek government forces over Communist-led guerrillas this month.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the United States Military Mission in Greece, is personally observing the spring offensive against the Communist bands in the southwestern Hellenic area.

Operating under Van Fleet's advice, a reinforced corps under Lt. Gen. Tsakalotos is closing in on the rebels. The government troops, numbering more than 30,000, are being aided by sea patrols in the Bay of Corinth.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet

It is expected that the rebels will be enveloped and that one of the most troublesome elements in the entire Greek situation will soon be wiped out.

● TRUMAN SITS TIGHT—Despite the roar from Congress about the Commerce department's refusal to turn over a loyalty report on atomic scientist Edward U. Condon, there is little possibility that congressmen can do anything about it.

President Truman has ordered the executive departments to withhold any loyalty information until he specifically authorizes release of the data. And Mr. Truman apparently is going to stick by that decision.

Although Congress can pass resolution after resolution requesting that the FBI report on Dr. Condon's loyalty be delivered to the House un-American activities committee, none of these can actually force the president or his departments to divulge any information.

The only way Congress could force release of the data would be to pass a new law—which, of course, the president could veto.

● DEFENSE STEPCHILD—The 70-air group program is no fledgling. It is nearly three years old. The idea started at the war's end when the Air Force drew up a blueprint of its continuing needs as part of a peace-enforcing military establishment.

Until recently the program won few friends. Economy was the watchword in Washington, and that meant no large post-war military expenditures.

A year ago Air Secretary Stuart Symington and Gen. Carl Spaatz pleaded for the 70-group program before the air policy commission, appointed by President Truman to study and report on America's declining air power. The commission endorsed the plan. The congressional aviation policy board went through much the same procedure.

Russia, plus political considerations in a presidential election year, touched off the drive for the program. Soviet aggression caused the president to plead for a temporary draft and universal military training, and Republican leaders in Congress saw in increased air power a means to bolster national defense without responding to the president's request.

● SALESMAN MARSHALL—Secretary of State George C. Marshall faces one more foreign salesmanship job before the present session of Congress ends. This will be the method and extent of United States participation in the western European mutual defense alliance.

Any such treaty must be ratified by Congress.

There are indications that the Truman administration does not desire to enter into a full alliance to guarantee completely the borders and sovereignty of all the signatory powers.

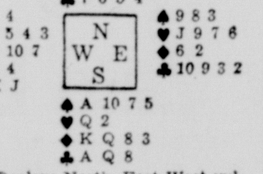

U. S. Aid In Alliance Discussed

More likely, a program will be worked out whereby the United States will agree to come to the defense of the other signatory powers only after an act of aggression has brought all the others into a concerted move against the aggressor.

Such a plan would have two desired results.

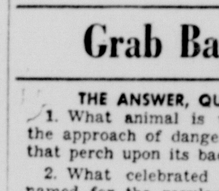

1—Should the aggressor be Russia, it would prevent Communist propagandists from claiming that the United States was "interfering" in European sovereignty by leading a common move against the aggressor.

2—It would give the United States an advance guarantee against other western European powers deciding to stand on the sidelines while the United States carried the ball in any future struggle between east and west.

Mrs. Alfred Henny Addresses Junior Women's Club Group

Future Summer Activities Booked

Mrs. Alfred J. Henny of Columbus was the speaker for the May meeting of the Circleville Junior Woman's club, held Thursday evening in the club rooms of Business and Professional Women.

Mrs. Henny told the group of her experiences while spending two and one half years as the wife of a consular official in Rio de Janeiro. She assured them that Rio is just as beautiful as pictured and that the sand on the beach is really white. In telling the group of their apartment she explained that they were fortunate in having hot water at all times while most Brazilian apartment dwellers were without it for periods of eight or ten days.

They had electric lamps burning in their closets, thereby saving them the trouble of airing their clothing each week because of the dampness.

Mrs. Henny said "ready-made clothing was almost non-existent in Rio and the prevailing wage for a seamstress was 90 cents per day."

Regarding public transportation she said that "all who could hang on rode the open air trolleys during the rush hours, but no more than eight persons were permitted to stand in busses". She said. "vegetables were rare luxuries and everyone consumes enormous amounts of vitamins and calcium. American canned foods were rare and expensive, a bottle of catsup costing, $1.25." She said there was always coffee, served with half sugar. Mrs. Henny displayed several dolls, jewelry, Christmas tree ornaments and a miniature street car.

During the business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Sterling Poling, reports on the state convention of Federated Women's Clubs were given by the delegates, Mrs Joseph Bell and Mrs. Poling. Mrs. Willis Liston reported on a visit to the Children's Home suggesting that the group purchase a linoleum rug for the play room, racks for the children's tooth brushes and chests of drawers for the room used by older girls.

Mrs. Harold Bainbridge of the local Red Cross unit described the need for the club group to go to the Veteran's Hospital at Chillicothe to do mending. The group decided to go there on May 19.

Mrs. Emerson Spicer, special events chairman, announced a picnic for the families of the members and a tea for new members to be held during the Summer.

Mrs. Richard Funk, hospitality chairman told the group that the June meeting will be a dinner in the Wardell party home.

Hostesses who served refreshments at the close of the meeting were Mrs. Ray W. Davis, Mrs. William Steele, and Mrs. Dwight Davis.

If the corners of your rugs or carpets begin to curl, apply a hot iron to a damp cloth on both the face and back of the carpeting at the corners. Another remedy is to sew cardboard triangles underneath the curling corners. Strong linen thread should be used for sewing the cardboard to the rug.

Mrs. Alfred Henny Addresses Junior Women's Club Group

Future Summer Activities Booked

Mrs. Alfred J. Henny of Columbus was the speaker for the May meeting of the Circleville Junior Woman's club, held Thursday evening in the club rooms of Business and Professional Women.

Mrs. Henny told the group of her experiences while spending two and one half years as the wife of a consular official in Rio de Janeiro. She assured them that Rio is just as beautiful as pictured and that the sand on the beach is really white. In telling the group of their apartment she explained that they were fortunate in having hot water at all times while most Brazilian apartment dwellers were without it for periods of eight or ten days.

They had electric lamps burning in their closets, thereby saving them the trouble of airing their clothing each week because of the dampness.

Mrs. Henny said "ready-made clothing was almost non-existent in Rio and the prevailing wage for a seamstress was 90 cents per day."

Regarding public transportation she said that "all who could hang on rode the open air trolleys during the rush hours, but no more than eight persons were permitted to stand in busses". She said. "vegetables were rare luxuries and everyone consumes enormous amounts of vitamins and calcium. American canned foods were rare and expensive, a bottle of catsup costing, $1.25." She said there was always coffee, served with half sugar. Mrs. Henny displayed several dolls, jewelry, Christmas tree ornaments and a miniature street car.

During the business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Sterling Poling, reports on the state convention of Federated Women's Clubs were given by the delegates, Mrs Joseph Bell and Mrs. Poling. Mrs. Willis Liston reported on a visit to the Children's Home suggesting that the group purchase a linoleum rug for the play room, racks for the children's tooth brushes and chests of drawers for the room used by older girls.

Mrs. Harold Bainbridge of the local Red Cross unit described the need for the club group to go to the Veteran's Hospital at Chillicothe to do mending. The group decided to go there on May 19.

Mrs. Emerson Spicer, special events chairman, announced a picnic for the families of the members and a tea for new members to be held during the Summer.

Mrs. Richard Funk, hospitality chairman told the group that the June meeting will be a dinner in the Wardell party home.

Hostesses who served refreshments at the close of the meeting were Mrs. Ray W. Davis, Mrs. William Steele, and Mrs. Dwight Davis.

Turkey Crop Cut Believed Too Great

Expert Feels Ohio Too Cautious

COLUMBUS, May 7—High feed prices and a slackening in demand for turkeys during 1947 put a damper on plans of turkey growers for growing the holiday birds in 1948. But D. D. Moyer, poultry husbandry specialist, Ohio State university, is wondering if the cut being made in the 1948 turkey crop is not bigger than is warranted by present conditions.

He says the 1948 turkey crop will be from 15 to 20 percent smaller than that of 1947 unless growers put in more orders for turkey poults to be hatched in June.

Farmers and pouttrymen kept 2,800,000 turkeys for breeders and the average number of young turkeys produced is eight to 10 for each mature bird kept, which would mean a 1948 total production of 28,000,000 or less turkeys.

Prices for turkey poults at hatcheries are high, but Moyer claims that price is not out of line with production costs for the hatcherymen. The only practical way to cut the cost of poults is to get more than an average of 10 poults for each hen turkey. Feed and labor costs cannot be easily controlled by any hatcheryman.

MOYER BELIEVES the cost of growing turkeys can be considerably reduced by avoiding feed waste and by making use of good pastures to provide part of the feed. This poultry husbandry specialist emphasizes the word good in recommending pastures for growing pullets, and he advises the use of clover, alfalfa or some other legume in the seeding mixture for poultry range.

He says a poultryman still can prepare pasture for his growing turkeys this year by sowing a mixture of Sudan grass and soybeans or by sowing that grass alone. Sudan grass should be seeded at a rate of at least 60 pounds per acre to produce turkey pasture. Lush pastures will carry 200 growing birds per acre. Best results are obtained when the birds can be shifted from one area to another every few days.

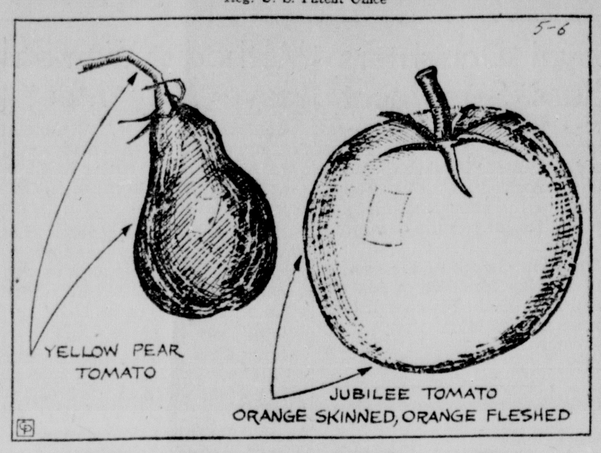

Thief Yanks Gal From Car

COLUMBUS, May 7 — Mrs. Sylvia Newburger of Columbus still was a bit stunned today by the actions of the town's nerviest thief.

She was waiting in the family car last night for her husband who had gone on a brief business errand when the thug opened the front door, unceremoniously yanked her from the seat and drove the car away from its mid-town parking place.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Yellow Tomatoes Take a Bow

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Distributed to Central Press Association

YELLOW tomatoes are making their appearance in more and more gardens because of the novelty of their color and because many varieties have less acidity than red ones.

One known as Jubilee is an All-America winner. It is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Since it is orange skinned, as well as orange fleshed, it is most attractive when sliced and does not leak when cut. It also makes delicious juice. It is also mild and free of acidity.

Golden Queen is another large size yellow tomato which resembles the Large Ponderosa in every way except color. Its fruits are very sweet and desirable for making preserves.

Yellow Colossal, as its name implies, is the largest of the yellow tomatoes. It has thick, meaty flesh, few seeds and is mild in flavor.

Among the miniature yellow fruited varieties are Yellow Pear, illustrated, Yellow Cherry, Yellow Plum and one called Yellow Peach. These small fruited tomatoes make excellent preserves and marmalades.

Yellow tomatoes, like their red sisters, should be mulched while the plants are still young. A mulch protects the roots against the drying out of soil due to wind and sun. It keeps the fruit clean and, most important, it is protection against the occurrence of blossom-end rot.

This rot appears as a water-soaked area on the blossom end of the tomatoes, hence its name. The affected area later turns brown or black or shrivels. Rot is caused by the breakdown of the cells of the fruit as result of improper soil moisture conditions and an uneven supply of water.

Only 1 Of 3 'Psychologists' Found 'Real'

TOLEDO, May 7—Bona fide psychologists may be found in the telephone directory but apparently only one out of three is an accredited practitioner.

The facts were made known today before the Ohio Academy of Science meeting at the University of Toledo.

A University of Cincinnati graduate student made a survey of telephone directories in 20 major cities. And reported the results to the academy.

Henry P. David, a student of clinical psychology, found that the directories listed Ph D degrees aplenty.

But David explained that it is difficult to distinguish between the man who received his degree after seven or eight years of college work and the man who got his through a short mail order course.

Said David:

"Unfortunately, the term 'psychologist' has not been properly defined in most states. Less than 19 percent of the 205 individuals whose names appear in the directories are listed in the 1947 yearbook of the American Psychological Association.

Charles Hutchings represented the Steinly-Wolfe Construction Company, of Fremont, which is rapidly completing the factory building.

The Great Virtue of Patriotism

QUEEN ESTHER RISKED HER THRONE FOR HER PEOPLE

Scripture—Esther

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

"LOVE OF one's country" is the dictionary definition of patriotism. In every country of the world, millions of men have died for their countries. They have died to defend their people from aggression; or striven to free them from tyranny.

To plot against one's country is the vile crime of treason, punishable by death. To willingly give one's life for it, is considered on a par with giving one's life for another; or, in Jesus' words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend."

In the time of which we are studying today the Jews were in exile, and their situation was most unhappy. They were homesick for their own land, and, as a displaced people, their position in an alien country was precarious, to say the least.

This was the situation in the third year of the reign of conquering King Ahasuerus, when he gave a great feast to neighboring princes and requested his queen, Vashti, to appear before his guests, "for she was fair to look upon."

Vashti did not choose to do as the king asked, so he became very angry and cast her out. Then he sent letters to all parts of the kingdom asking that fair young maidens from each province be sent to court so that he might choose the most beautiful for his new queen.

Attached to the court was a Jew named Mordecai. He had at one time discovered a plot to assassinate the king, had foiled it and brought the criminals to justice. This was written in the book of records, but apparently no one read them and the matter had been forgotten. Mordecai had adopted the orphan daughter of his uncle, a lovely girl named Esther. Mordecai had her brought to the palace to appear before the king, hoping that Ahasuerus' choice would fall on her. King Ahasuerus did choose Esther, falling in love with her at once, and she became Queen Esther.

Also at court was a man named Haman who ranked high in the king's favor. He was selfish and ambitious, and was unscrupulous in obtaining what he desired.

Haman demanded that all those connected with the court bow low when he appeared, and most did, but Mordecai, the Jew, refused to do this man reverence. For this Haman hated Mordecai and plotted to rid himself of the man and all his people. He persuaded the king to sign an edict that on a certain date all the Jews in the kingdom should be massacred—men, women and children.

When word of this came to Mordecai's ears he "rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth with ashes, and went out into the midst of the city, and cried with a loud and bitter cry." Queen Esther, seeing him in such garb, sent for him to inquire the cause. Mordecai told her of the horror about to befall their people, and reminded her that she herself might become a victim of the edict. He asked her to intercede for them with the king.

If she appeared unbidden before King Ahasuerus, Esther told Mordecai, she might be killed—it was the law—unless the king held out to her the royal scepter to touch. Nevertheless she would go, "and if I perish, I perish," she declared.

Dressed in her royal robes, Esther came into the king's presence, and when Ahasuerus saw her he held out to her the scepter, and she touched it and was saved. What did his queen want? Ahasuerus asked. Only that he would dine with her on the morrow and bring Haman with him. Haman was delighted at this sign of honor, and that night he had a great high gallows built near the palace, on which he planned to hang Mordecai.

That night Ahasuerus could not sleep, and to quiet himself he read the book of records. In it he found the account of Mordecai's heroism toward himself, and he asked what had been done to reward this man. Nothing, was the answer. Next day he asked Haman what should be done to the man the king wished to honor. Haman, thinking Ahasuerus meant himself, advised that the royal robes be put upon the man, the king's horse should be given him to ride, and even the royal crown should be placed on his brow. So do to Mordecai, the Jew, said the king.

The queen told Ahasuerus after a second feast with Haman present what dreadful fate Haman had plotted for her people. The king was furious. He had Haman hanged on the very gallows Haman had built for Mordecai. The edict against the Jews was revoked, and thus this Jewish girl became the heroine of a great true story exemplifying real patriotism.

Farm Prices Continue Trend Up During April

COLUMBUS, May 7—The general level of prices received by Ohio farmers continued its upward trend during the month ended April 15.

The Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today that at mid-April, the prices for most principal commodities were higher than a year earlier.

Wheat, corn, oats, rye and soybeans advanced in price while barley and buckwheat showed no change.

However, compared to a year previous, wheat and soybeans were, respectively, 23 and five cents per bushel lower while corn was 54 cents higher and oats advanced 37 cents.

Of the meat animals, beef cattle increased the sharpest during the month and set a new all-time high on April 15 of $23.50 per hundred weight. Chickens and butterfat increased in price during the month: eggs and milk sold at wholesale declined.

Pigeon Back After 9 Years

CLEVELAND, May 7—Pigeon AU 567 is home from the races, but she's not telling what happened since she took to the air some nine years back.

The pigeon, owned by William S. Wellman of Cleveland, was entered in a 100-mile race nine years ago and what happened to her since probably never will be known.

Wellman, in checking his pigeons, noted the newcomer occupying the same perch formerly owned by AU 567. Wellman, who has been flying birds for 33 years and has a record of every bird he ever owned, checked the band and found the entry in his books.

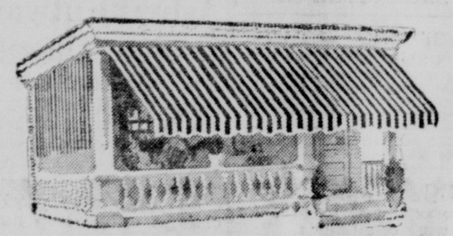

Of the five Great Lakes, only one, Lake Michigan, is wholly within the United States.

LIMA LADY LOSES 88½ POUNDS WITH THIS HOME RECIPE

Mrs. C. M. Wright, 124 West 5th St., loses weight without dieting.

"I have tried many reducing preparations but nothing ever helped me until I tried Rennel" writes Mrs. Wright. "Since I started taking Rennel I have eaten as much as I wanted and anything that I wanted yet I have lost weight and feel much better than I have in ten years. Before taking Rennel my excess weight kept me tired out all of the time. I am so happy that I tried Rennel because the other products that I have tried didn't help me at all. My druggist recommended Rennel to me and I wouldn't be without it."

Rennel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple, go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle, take just two tablespoons twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen hips, calves and ankles; just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel, no starvation diet, no printed diet list to buy, no expensive vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry.

Farm Prices Continue Trend Up During April

COLUMBUS, May 7—The general level of prices received by Ohio farmers continued its upward trend during the month ended April 15.

The Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today that at mid-April, the prices for most principal commodities were higher than a year earlier.

Wheat, corn, oats, rye and soybeans advanced in price while barley and buckwheat showed no change.

However, compared to a year previous, wheat and soybeans were, respectively, 23 and five cents per bushel lower while corn was 54 cents higher and oats advanced 37 cents.

Of the meat animals, beef cattle increased the sharpest during the month and set a new all-time high on April 15 of $23.50 per hundred weight. Chickens and butterfat increased in price during the month: eggs and milk sold at wholesale declined.

Pigeon Back After 9 Years

CLEVELAND, May 7—Pigeon AU 567 is home from the races, but she's not telling what happened since she took to the air some nine years back.

The pigeon, owned by William S. Wellman of Cleveland, was entered in a 100-mile race nine years ago and what happened to her since probably never will be known.

Wellman, in checking his pigeons, noted the newcomer occupying the same perch formerly owned by AU 567. Wellman, who has been flying birds for 33 years and has a record of every bird he ever owned, checked the band and found the entry in his books.

Of the five Great Lakes, only one, Lake Michigan, is wholly within the United States.

LIMA LADY LOSES 88½ POUNDS WITH THIS HOME RECIPE

Mrs. C. M. Wright, 124 West 5th St., loses weight without dieting.

"I have tried many reducing preparations but nothing ever helped me until I tried Rennel" writes Mrs. Wright. "Since I started taking Rennel I have eaten as much as I wanted and anything that I wanted yet I have lost weight and feel much better than I have in ten years. Before taking Rennel my excess weight kept me tired out all of the time. I am so happy that I tried Rennel because the other products that I have tried didn't help me at all. My druggist recommended Rennel to me and I wouldn't be without it."

Rennel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple, go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle, take just two tablespoons twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen hips, calves and ankles; just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel, no starvation diet, no printed diet list to buy, no expensive vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry.

Elmer Ray's Boss Cries Loudly Charles Must Omit Rabbit Punch

CHICAGO, May 7 — Tommy O'Loughlin, who manages Elmer Ray, says he is thinking of holding Ezzard Charles responsible if Ray dies as a result of his fight with Charles at Chicago stadium tonight.

This startling, dour outlook had its inception, of course, in Charles' last stadium appearance—the Feb. 20 bout which resulted in the death of Sam Baroudi.

"Rabbit punches," said O'Loughlin last night, "those rabbit punches of Charles'—look out for them. I'm told he hit Baroudi at least 20 rabbit punches on the back of the neck, and there isn't a state boxing commission in the country says that's legal.

"What I'm going to do is this. I'm going before the Illinois commission tomorrow and ask them—ask them, mind, I can't tell them to do anything—to warn this Charles against hitting my boy rabbit punches like he hit him last year when my boy beat him.

* * *

"IF MY BOY dies after the fight and Charles was using those rabbit punches, look out, that's all."

The Charles-Ray outing, Chicago's biggest attraction since Zale-Graziano of last July, is expected to stuff the stadium to the gills.

Ray, who operates as a heavyweight, belted out an exciting victory over Charles, who's number one light-heavy contender, in New York last year.

There is no indication, therefore, that Charles may be expected to kill his opponent, either figuratively, or, in terms of the unhappy recent past, literally in their 10-round feature bout. Illinois' and other precautions should help, too.

Indians Bounce Back, Lengthen Lead In AA

By International News Service

The front-running Indianapolis Indians, their lead rescued by a victory in the final game of three-game series with the St. Paul Saints, moved to Minneapolis to open a four-game series with the fourth-place Millers tonight.

The Indian warclubs finally caught up with the slants of the Saint pitchers, who heretofore had the Indians sign proper on the Tribe.

After losing the first two games, the Indians slammed out 10 solid hits for a 10-to-2 victory over the second-placers.

The win boosted the Indianapolis lead back to two full games.

Jim Bagby limited the Saints to five hits, although the Apostles led 1-0 going into the fifth. Then the Tribe fashioned four runs and added five more in the lucky seventh.

Minneapolis, the competition for the loop leaders tonight, got a lot of bad baseball last night. The Millers committed two bobbles afield and three hurlers gave up 15 hits as they dropped a 11-to-3 game to the Toledo Mud Hens. Johnson was credited with the four-hit victory. The other teams were idle.

Ashville Awaits League Opener

The Ashville Reds are to tangle with Jamestown in their season opener in the South Central Ohio Baseball League at Communisty Park in Ashville Sunday.

The Reds were proclaimed champs of the loop last year when they racked up an impressive string of 18 wins during the season, losing only three of their contests.

Probable starting pitchers for the opener are Lou Skillings, Jamestown southpaw, and Robert Whetsel, right hand hurler for the Reds. The opener is set to begin at 2:30 p. m.

Coaches Plan Attending Clinic

Tom Bennett, track mentor and assistant football coach for the Circleville high school, is at Ohio State university to attend the annual Spring football clinic and track meet to be held Friday and Saturday.

Notre Dame's Frank Leahy, one of the top gridiron coaches in the U. S., was to address nearly 500 coaches, and Ohio State's Wes Fesler was slated to supervise the program.

Steve Brudzinski, head pigskin coach of the Red and Black, is to attend the Saturday session of the clinic, when an intrasquad game by the OSU Bucks is planned for their closing Spring practices.

ECONOMY IN VICTORY

Connie Mack Snickering Up Sleeve About Pitchers

NEW YORK, May 7—Wise old Connie Mack, who has piloted his lightly-regarded Philadelphia Athletics into first place in the American League with five straight wins, must be laughing up his sleeve at the pitching troubles of other major league clubs these days.

While other managers have shelled out huge bonuses for minor league stars or keeping highly-touted, highly-paid veteran hurlers on the payroll, the canny Mr. McGillicuddy, has assembled an adequate pitching staff which probably cost him less than $25,000, all told.

Phil Marchildon, Joe Coleman and Dick Fowler, who beat Cleveland 8 to 5 yesterday, all came up from Toronto at bargain rates.

Carl Scheib had to beg for a chance to work for Mr. Mack. Bill McCahan was grabbed on a sandlot diamond. Lou Brissie and Bob Savage were picked up at institutions of learning.

This economy is in sharp contrast to such cases as the Phillies laying $60,000 on the line for the schoolboy, Curt Simmons, who has not made good, and Cleveland paying an undisclosed but undoubtedly enormous sum and giving two players for Will Hafey, Oakland pitcher who had been sought by several major league clubs.

* * *

THEN THERE are high-priced veterans like Detroit's Hal Newhouser, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning yesterday and has failed to win half his games since July 30, 1946, and Bob Feller.

Feller has been shelled from the hill in his last two starts. He couldn't stop the A's yesterday even after Ken Keltner had belted a grand-slam homer for the Indians.

Allie Reynolds has been the only consistent pitcher for the Yankees and he was lucky to beat the St. Louis Browns yesterday, 6 to 5, because all the St. Louis players and many fans and other observers thought that Bobby Brown's two-run homer, which won the game in the eighth inning, was a foul ball.

The Yanks advanced to second place and Cleveland dropped all the way from first place to third.

Four-hit scoreless pitching by Hal White enabled Detroit to beat the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 3, after the Sox knocked out Newhouser. A fist fight between Birdie Tebbets, Boston catcher, and George Vico, Detroit first baseman, enlivened this contest.

* * *

RAY POAT of the New York Giants held the Pittsburgh Pirates to four hits and beat them 9 to 2. The two teams now are practically tied for first place in the National League.

All other National League games were washed out.

In a night game, Earl Wynn of the Washington Senators demonstrated why the Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees and other clubs are angling for him. The big fellow held the Chicago White Sox to three hits and blanked them 5 to 0. The Nats tied the Red Sox for fourth place in the American League.

Columbus Wins AA Crowd Trophy

COLUMBUS, May 7 — Columbus was officially designated today as winner of the American Association's opening day attendance trophy.

The Red Birds drew 14,823 fans to their opener April 15 to win the first attendance award in Columbus history. On the percentage of population basis used in awarding the trophy, Columbus rated 4.8 to a 4.2 index for Louisville, the runnerup.

Red Bird President Al Banister immediately announced that the club will hold a special night May 17 to celebrate the victory. He said a reduced general admission price will be in effect that night when the Birds entertain the Indianapolis Indians, current league leaders.

Ring Regulations Are Tightened

COLUMBUS, May 7—Professional boxing was made safer in Columbus today.

The Columbus Boxing Commission today placed in effect new regulations calling for eight instead of six-ounce gloves in a move to prevent serious injuries to fighters.

Another new regulation provides that a boxer knocked off his feet must take a count of eight before he can resume fighting. In the event of three knockdowns of a fighter in a single round, the fight will be stopped and the downed fighter declared the loser by a technical knockout.

'Fight Of Decade' Is Postponed

CLEVELAND, May 7—Cleveland's "fight of the decade" was set back a couple of months today because of a broken nose.

Matchmaker Larry Atkins announced that the scheduled return match between Middleweights Steve Belloise and Chuck Hunter of Cleveland on May 17 has been cancelled because of the injury suffered by the New Yorker.

Belloise, who lost a much-disputed decision to the Clevelander April 20, had his nose fractured in three places in a sparring bout in his training headquarters two days ago.

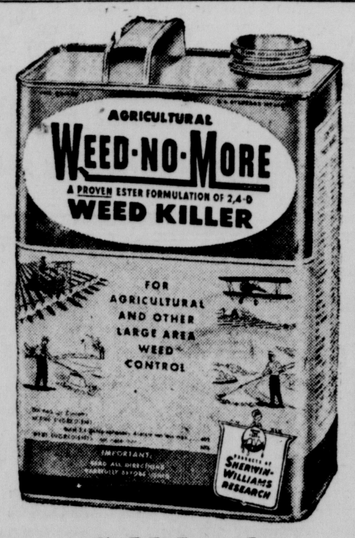

Tigers Rained From Tourney

Circleville high school's baseball squad was rained out of its first game in the central district tournament play Thursday.

All first round games in the tourney have been rescheduled for Friday, and four teams will be left in the tourney after the next slated round, set for Saturday.

Circleville is to meet Columbus South at South at 4:30 p. m.

Elmer Ray's Boss Cries Loudly Charles Must Omit Rabbit Punch

CHICAGO, May 7—Tommy O'Loughlin, who manages Elmer Ray, says he is thinking of holding Ezzard Charles responsible if Ray dies as a result of his fight with Charles at Chicago stadium tonight.

This startling, dour outlook had its inception, of course, in Charles' last stadium appearance—the Feb. 20 bout which resulted in the death of Sam Baroudi.

"Rabbit punches," said O'Loughlin last night, "those rabbit punches of Charles'—look out for them. I'm told he hit Baroudi at least 20 rabbit punches on the back of the neck, and there isn't a state boxing commission in the country says that's legal.

"What I'm going to do is this. I'm going before the Illinois commission tomorrow and ask them—ask them, mind, I can't tell them to do anything—to warn this Charles against hitting my boy rabbit punches like he hit him last year when my boy beat him.

• • •

"IF MY BOY dies after the fight and Charles was using those rabbit punches, look out, that's all."

The Charles-Ray outing, Chicago's biggest attraction since Zale-Graziano of last July, is expected to stuff the stadium to the gills.

Ray, who operates as a heavyweight, belted out an exciting victory over Charles, who's number one light-heavy contender, in New York last year.

There is no indication, therefore, that Charles may be expected to kill his opponent, either figuratively, or, in terms of the unhappy recent past, literally in their 10-round feature bout. Illinois' and other precautions should help, too.

Indians Bounce Back, Lengthen Lead In AA

By International News Service

The front-running Indianapolis Indians, their lead rescued by a victory in the final game of three-game series with the St. Paul Saints, moved to Minneapolis to open a four-game series with the fourth-place Millers tonight.

The Indian warclubs finally caught up with the slants of the Saint pitchers, who heretofore had the Indians sign proper on the Tribe.

After losing the first two games, the Indians slammed out 10 solid hits for a 10-to-2 victory over the second-placers.

The win boosted the Indianapolis lead back to two full games.

Jim Bagby limited the Saints to five hits, although the Apostles led 1-0 going into the fifth. Then the Tribe fashioned four runs and added five more in the lucky seventh.

Minneapolis, the competition for the loop leaders tonight, got a lot of bad baseball last night. The Millers committed two bobbles afield and three hurlers gave up 15 hits as they dropped a 11-to-3 game to the Toledo Mud Hens. Johnson was credited with the four-hit victory. The other teams were idle.

Ashville Awaits League Opener

The Ashville Reds are to tangle with Jamestown in their season opener in the South Central Ohio Baseball League at Communisty Park in Ashville Sunday.

The Reds were proclaimed champs of the loop last year when they racked up an impressive string of 18 wins during the season, losing only three of their contests.

Probable starting pitchers for the opener are Lou Skillings, Jamestown southpaw, and Robert Whetsel, right hand hurler for the Reds. The opener is set to begin at 2:30 p. m.

ECONOMY IN VICTORY

Connie Mack Snickering Up Sleeve About Pitchers

NEW YORK, May 7—Wise old Connie Mack, who has piloted his lightly-regarded Philadelphia Athletics into first place in the American League with five straight wins, must be laughing up his sleeve at the pitching troubles of other major league clubs these days.

While other managers have shelled out huge bonuses for minor league stars or keeping highly-touted, highly-paid veteran hurlers on the payroll, the canny Mr. McGillicuddy, has assembled an adequate pitching staff which probably cost him less than $25,000, all told.

Phil Marchildon, Joe Coleman and Dick Fowler, who beat Cleveland 8 to 5 yesterday, all came up from Toronto at bargain rates.

Carl Scheib had to beg for a chance to work for Mr. Mack. Bill McCahan was grabbed on a sandlot diamond. Lou Brissie and Bob Savage were picked up at institutions of learning.

This economy is in sharp contrast to such cases as the Phillies laying $60,000 on the line for the schoolboy, Curt Simmons, who has not made good, and Cleveland paying an undisclosed but undoubtedly enormous sum and giving two players for Will Hafey, Oakland pitcher who had been sought by several major league clubs.

THEN THERE are high-priced veterans like Detroit's Hal Newhouser, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning yesterday and has failed to win half his games since July 30, 1946, and Bob Feller.

Feller has been shelled from the hill in his last two starts. He couldn't stop the A's yesterday even after Ken Keltner had belted a grand-slam homer for the Indians.

Allie Reynolds has been the only consistent pitcher for the Yankees and he was lucky to beat the St. Louis Browns yesterday, 6 to 5, because all the St. Louis players and many fans and other observers thought that Bobby Brown's two-run homer, which won the game in the eighth inning, was a foul ball.

The Yanks advanced to second place and Cleveland dropped all the way from first place to third.

Four-hit scoreless pitching by Hal White enabled Detroit to beat the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 3, after the Sox knocked out Newhouser. A fist fight between Birdie Tebbets, Boston catcher, and George Vico, Detroit first baseman, enlivened this contest.

RAY POAT of the New York Giants held the Pittsburgh Pirates to four hits and beat them 9 to 2. The two teams now are practically tied for first place in the National League.

All other National League games were washed out.

In a night game, Earl Wynn of the Washington Senators demonstrated why the Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees and other clubs are angling for him. The big fellow held the Chicago White Sox to three hits and blanked them 5 to 0. The Nats tied the Red Sox for fourth place in the American League.

Columbus Wins AA Crowd Trophy

COLUMBUS, May 7—Columbus was officially designated today as winner of the American Association's opening day attendance trophy.

The Red Birds drew 14,823 fans to their opener April 15 to win the first attendance award in Columbus history. On the percentage of population basis used in awarding the trophy, Columbus rated 4.8 to a 4.2 index for Louisville, the runnerup.

Red Bird President Al Banister immediately announced that the club will hold a special night May 17 to celebrate the victory. He said a reduced general admission price will be in effect that night when the Birds entertain the Indianapolis Indians, current league leaders.

Ring Regulations Are Tightened

COLUMBUS, May 7—Professional boxing was made safer in Columbus today.

The Columbus Boxing Commission today placed in effect new regulations calling for eight instead of six-ounce gloves in a move to prevent serious injuries to fighters.

Another new regulation provides that a boxer knocked off his feet must take a count of eight before he can resume fighting. In the event of three knockdowns of a fighter in a single round, the fight will be stopped and the downed fighter declared the loser by a technical knockout.

'Fight Of Decade' Is Postponed

CLEVELAND, May 7—Cleveland's "fight of the decade" was set back a couple of months today because of a broken nose.

Matchmaker Larry Atkins announced that the scheduled return match between Middleweights Steve Belloise and Chuck Hunter of Cleveland on May 17 has been cancelled because of the injury suffered by the New Yorker.

Belloise, who lost a much-disputed decision to the Clevelander April 20, had his nose fractured in three places in a sparring bout in his training headquarters two days ago.

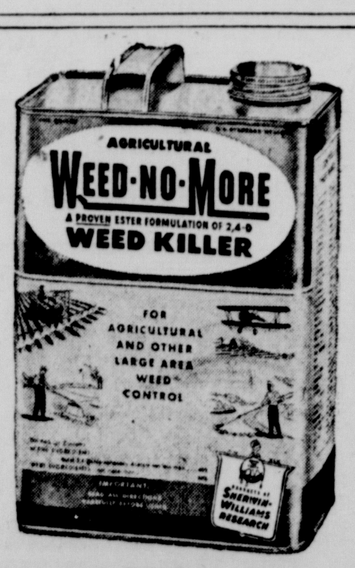

Tigers Rained From Tourney

Circleville high school's baseball squad was rained out of its first game in the central district tournament play Thursday.

All first round games in the tourney have been rescheduled for Friday, and four teams will be left in the tourney after the next slated round, set for Saturday.

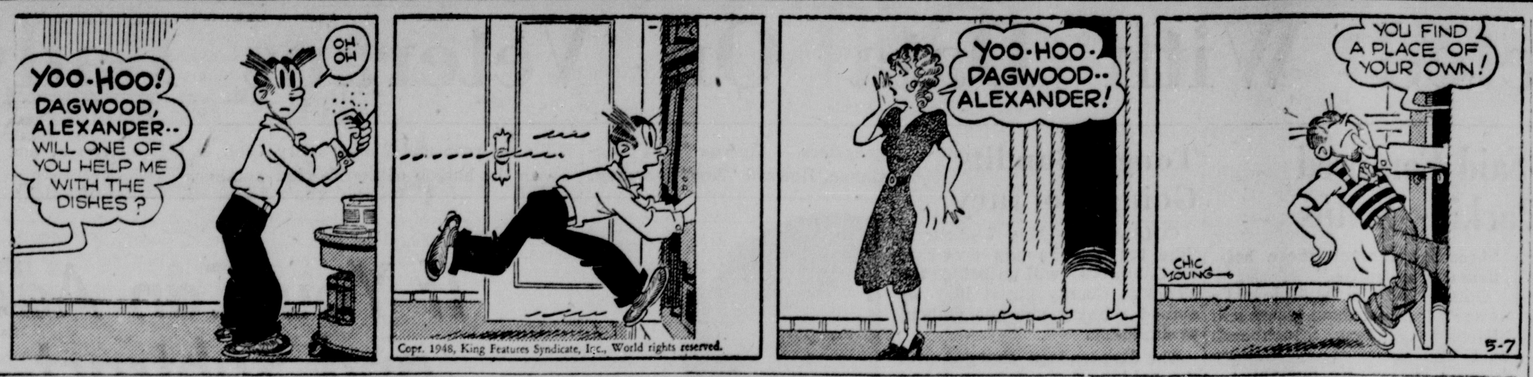

Circleville is to meet Columbus South at South at 4:30 p. m.

Don Ameche will bid his old friends Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen farewell on Sunday at 8:00 p. m. over NBC, as they do their last show in Hollywood prior to their Spring trip east. Songstress Anita Gordon, Pat Patrick and Ray Noble and his orchestra will complete the cast for the half-hour show.

The last time Ameche appeared as a guest on the program he welcomed Charlie and Edgar Back to Hollywood after their tour of Louisiana and Texas. This time he will say adieu as they leave to do broadcasts from Washington, D. C. and New York.

Charlie had such a good time on his last tour of the South that he is eagerly looking forward to his visit to the nation's capital, first stop on this trip, especially since he has heard that the ratio of girls to boys in Washington is six to one.

Don McNeill, of radio's famed "Breakfast Club", will be the guest on the Fred Allen Show Sunday at 8:30 p. m. over NBC.

His arrival is eagerly awaited by Allen's Alley residents Kenny Delmar (Senator Claghorn), Parker Fennelly (Titus Moody), Minerva Pious (Mrs. Nussbaum) and Peter Donald (Ajax Cassidy).

The popular emcee's appearance on the Fred Allen program is made possible because Don has brought his "Breakfast Club", regularly aired from Chicago, to New York for his annual Spring visit.

Sometimes a dead blonde can cause more trouble than a live one, "Nick Carter, Master Detective" learns particularly when one such blonde uses his office as a death room during "The Case of the Nameless Blonde" scheduled for Mutual broadcast Sunday at 4 p. m.

Not only does Nick have to learn her identity, but he also must cope with a second murder before an old ship's log and a cablegram sent nine years earlier provide the clue to the case.

Paul Whiteman, the ABC disk jockey, relays the tale of the 'teen-ager attending her first concert. The girl turned to her escort and asked, "What's that book the conductor keeps looking at?"

Her beau replied, "That's the score of the overture."

The girl thought that over a minute and then asked:

"Who's winning?"

"The most popular male singer program" on the air for the past six months was Al Jolson's Thursday night Kraft Music Hall, according to Hooper's semi-annual report.

The recently completed popularity survey of radio programs covered the period from November, 1947 through April, 1948.

County Being Blanketed With Data On Veterans Rally

GI Benefits To Be Aired Here May 13

2,000 Letters Being Mailed

A Pickaway County Veterans Rally, scheduled for the evening of May 13 in Circleville high school auditorium, is being boosted in more ways than one by James P. Shea, county veterans service officer, and Robert W. Beoddy, local contact representative for the Veterans Administration.

About 2,000 letters have been mailed direct to veterans telling them about the meeting, the entire county is being blanketed with posters announcing the rally, letters are being sent to members of the ministerial association requesting announcements to their congregations.

Notices are being sent to all the county grade and high schools, as well as veterans on the farm training schools, publicity is to be aired over a veterans program broadcast by various stations, and even an Army recruiting jeep equipped with a loud speaker has been pressed into service to make announcements on local streets and public gatherings in the county.

"Since the rally is for the veteran's benefit they should all want to attend," Shea stated, "and since we can not invite each one personally we are using every other means we know of to spread the word around."

THE LOCAL VA representative reports that Dr. Frank E. August would be among the guests present. Dr. August is the manager of the Cincinnati regional office of the VA which serves approximately a million veterans in the southern half of Ohio.

Various other VA officials will attend including Dillard S. Green, supervisor of agricultural training for all of Southern Ohio, and Ralph Taylor who is the specialist in charge of the Pickaway County on the farm training program.

These men, along with others, will be available to answer individual questions for veterans after the planned portion of the rally.

The program, scheduled to start at 8 p. m., will feature the appearance of about a dozen VA officials who will give talks and lead roundtable discussions on the multitude of benefits available to veterans of World War II.

Among the topics to be aired are on-job training, farm training, schooling, insurance, compensation, pensions, out-patient and hospital medical and dental treatments, readjustment payments and GI loans.

UAW Set To Ask 30-Cent Hike

DETROIT, May 7—The pattern of union wage demands on the automotive "big three" was completed today as the CIO United Auto Workers voted to ask Ford for a 30-cent-an-hour increase.

Negotiations already are in progress with General Motors and Chrysler.

The Ford demands, to be presented when the contract is reopened on economic issues July 15, were unanimously approved at a meeting yesterday of delegates to the National Ford Council.

The "package" economic demands, consisting of the 30-cent wage increase and other benefits, will total an estimated 50 cents an hour, the highest yet asked by the union.

Lad, 14, Held In 2 Slayings

BRYAN, May 7—A local junior high school student faced possible first degree murder charges today in connection with the double killing of a friendly housewife and her husband.

Deputy Sheriffs Howard Zuver and William Lamont said 14-year-old Ervin A Ingle confessed last night to killing Mrs. Pearl Gabriel, 57, and her husband because he wanted to drive the couple's automobile to a school dance tonight.

The officers said the eighth grade student was picked up on suspicion last night and broke down in the presence of his father, Keith F. Ingle, after two hours of grilling.

Sheriff Norman A. Barnes said John Gabriel died last night. His wife's body was found in a ditch several hours earlier.

Average Motorist Said Confused About Highway, Parking Status

WASHINGTON, May 7—Mr. Average Motorist was pictured today as being somewhat confused about things in general but desperately in need of a good parking space.

To put it the way a speaker before the second highway transportation Congress did, somebody "let him down" and he wonders "how we got this way" internationally and domestically.

William A. Stinchcomb, secretary of the Cleveland Metropolitan Park district, didn't offer a solution to the world's political problems. But he said that whether he likes it or not the average motorist is "caught up in this stream of world events."

Stinchcomb argued that in the good old days the cities and towns at least provided hitching rails and hitching posts and water troughs for grandfather's horse.

BUT TODAY, that's a different story. He said:

"The average motorist is becoming increasing annoyed because there are so many of him trying to get into and through our metropolitan areas, on street systems wholly inadequate for modern motor traffic."

Not only that, but Stinchcomb said that the autoist also is obliged to share such inadequate streets with trucks and mass transportation busses.

All this, Stinchcomb said, is causing more and more motorists to wonder whether their license and tax dollars are doing the most good. He suggested that perhaps more money whould be spent on "breaking through these bottlenecks of traffic."

Outside of the automobile owner's feelings about street and highway conditions, Stinchbomb said the motorist is a very friendly person. He declared:

"He wants only what he is entitled to, and he accords to every other person the same, and with general good will to all men, he wonders why we are all throughout the world in such a fix."

Former Local Man Paroled

George Clifton, 25-year-old former Circleville man convicted of breaking and entering and grand larceny in connection June 25, 1947, with the theft of $1,700 from the Circleville American Legion, has been granted a parole by the state pardon and parole board.

Clifton is an inmate of the Mansfield reformatory, sentenced there to serve two concurrent terms, 1 to 15 years for burglary and 1 to 7 years for grand larceny. Parole for the man is to be effective June 22.

Tough Bandits Going To Jury

COLUMBUS, May 7—Four of "the toughest bandits ever to hit Columbus" will go before the Franklin County grand jury on armed robbery charges without preliminary.

The desperadoes, charged with the holdup of the former Ritz Night Club here faced a "show-up" before 24 holdup victims yesterday at city prison.

At the end of the session, Sheriff Ralph J. Paul said:

"We can definitely say that the robbery of the Ritz Club is cleared up."

The sheriff also has linked the gangsters — George "Red" McGahan, Howard "Ace" Bowman, William Green and Walter Flory —with the holdup of the Fairfax Club in Cincinnati last November.

"Head and Shoulders Above the Crowd"

• That's the verdict of those who know combines. If you always have clean, upstanding crops, you may not really need a combine so capable as the Case "A." But for small seeds like clover, that take real rubbing to thresh out . . . or a brittle crop like beans . . . or fine, fluffy seeds like some of the grasses . . . or even grain that is tough to thresh, the "A" is in a class by itself.

GI Benefits To Be Aired Here May 13

2,000 Letters Being Mailed

A Pickaway County Veterans Rally, scheduled for the evening of May 13 in Circleville high school auditorium, is being boosted in more ways than one by James P. Shea, county veterans service officer, and Robert W. Beoddy, local contact representative for the Veterans Administration.

About 2,000 letters have been mailed direct to veterans telling them about the meeting, the entire county is being blanketed with posters announcing the rally, letters are being sent to members of the ministerial association requesting announcements to their congregations.

Notices are being sent to all the county grade and high schools, as well as veterans on the farm training schools, publicity is to be aired over a veterans program broadcast by various stations, and even an Army recruiting jeep equipped with a loud speaker has been pressed into service to make announcements on local streets and public gatherings in the county.

"Since the rally is for the veteran's benefit they should all want to attend," Shea stated, "and since we can not invite each one personally we are using every other means we know of to spread the word around."

THE LOCAL VA representative reports that Dr. Frank E. August would be among the guests present. Dr. August is the manager of the Cincinnati regional office of the VA which serves approximately a million veterans in the southern half of Ohio.

Various other VA officials will attend including Dillard S. Green, supervisor of agricultural training for all of Southern Ohio, and Ralph Taylor who is the specialist in charge of the Pickaway County on the farm training program.

These men, along with others, will be available to answer individual questions for veterans after the planned portion of the rally.

The program, scheduled to start at 8 p. m., will feature the appearance of about a dozen VA officials who will give talks and lead roundtable discussions on the multitude of benefits available to veterans of World War II.

Among the topics to be aired are on-job training, farm training, schooling, insurance, compensation, pensions, out-patient and hospital medical and dental treatments, readjustment payments and GI loans.
